9. By the 1st December preceding the date fixed for the examination the Accountant-General should forward to the Principal of the Bengal Engineering College for registration a statement showing in respect of accepted candidates only, their names, dates of birth, addresses and the centre where they are to be examined. The statement should be supported by the accepted candidates' registration forms duly signed by the Accountant-General in token of acceptance and should be carefully preserved by the Principal.

10. Simultaneously, each candidate should be informed whether or not his application has been accepted.

11. The 17th July 1929

No. F.-15-X/R. II/29.—The following resolution by the Secretary of State for India in Council is published for general information :—

In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (2) of section 96-B of the Government of India Act, the Secretary of State, with the concurrence of the majority of votes at a meeting of the Council of India held this 26th day of May 1929, hereby makes the following amendments to the Civil Service Regulations, namely :—

1. For article 356 of the said regulations, the following shall be substituted, namely :—

"356.—(a) Service rendered by an employee belonging to one of the classes mentioned in note 2 below, after attaining the age of 30 years, which is pensionable under military rules but which terminates before a pension has been earned in respect of it, may, at the discretion of the Government of India or of the Provincial and minor Local Governments specified in Parts I and II of Appendix I to these regulations, be allowed to count, when followed by service qualifying for pension under civil rules, as part of such service, provided that any bonus or gratuity received in lieu of pension on, or since, discharge from military service shall be refunded in such number of monthly instalments, not normally exceeding 36, and beginning from such date, as in each case the Government of India, Provincial Government or minor Local Government, as the case may be, may decide. Service so allowed to count shall, however, be restricted to service, within or outside the employee's unit or department, in India or elsewhere, which has been paid for from Indian revenues or for which a pensionary contribution has been received by Indian revenues.

(b) Service pensionable under military rules which does not terminate before a pension has been earned in respect of it shall not be allowed to count for pension under civil rules without the sanction of the Secretary of State in Council.

Note 1.—An officer, ex soldier or ex-airman will not be brought under the operation of this article as a matter of course. Each case will be decided on its merits, e.g., there may be cases in which it may be open to a claimant for pension to add military service during the Great War to former non-pensionable service in the Army in order to obtain the benefit of a military pension. In such cases it may be to the advantage of the claimant that he should not be brought under the operation of this article. The bearing of paragraph 374 of the Pay and Allowance Regulations of the Army in India, Part II, on the position of soldiers of the Indian Army who re-entered during the Great War, deserves consideration in this connexion.

Note 2.—This article applies to Indian commissioned officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the Indian Army, and to non combatant departmental and regimental employees and followers of the supplemental services. It also applies to warrant and non-commissioned officers and men of the British Service, and to warrant officers and departmental officers of the commissary and assistant-surgeon classes.

Note 3.—To be eligible for the concession in this article, the individual concerned should take his discharge from the Army or Royal Air Force within 12 months of the date of his confirmation in the appointment pensionable under civil rules. This limit may, in special cases, be relaxed by the Government of India.

Note 4.—Employees in the Military Police have the option of counting service under any other rules in these regulations which would give them a similar or more liberal concession.

Note 5.—Employees who were in service in an appointment pensionable under civil rules on the 22nd February 1921 are eligible to count service under the rules which were in force before that date, where those rules are more advantageous to them."

2. In article 357 of the said regulations, for the words "the civil department," in both places where it occurs, the words "An appointment pensionable under civil rules" shall be substituted.

3. After article 357 of the said regulations, the following shall be inserted, namely :—

"357-A. Civil employees (other than members of All-India services or of other services or departments governed by special orders) who, prior to their civil employment, have rendered satisfactory paid military service in the Great War, which does not ordinarily qualify for a service pension under military rules, shall be allowed to count such military service for the purpose of civil pension, subject to the observance of the following general principles :—

(1) Completed years of military service shall be allowed to count up to a maximum of four years.

(2) In the case of services in which a minimum age is fixed for recruitment, no military service rendered below that age shall be allowed to count for pension.

(3) The addition of war service shall not be included in total service under article 408 of these regulations for the purpose of counting leave as service for pension, nor allowed in addition to the concession in article 403 or 404-A, but any Government servant who may be entitled to the concessions admissible under the latter articles and to the concession in this article, will be allowed to select whichever is more favourable.

(4) British and Indian military service shall be allowed to count alike for pension and no contribution towards, or share of, a pension earned as a result of this concession shall be claimed from the Home Government.

(5) No refund of military bonus or gratuity shall be demanded from the employee."

Simla, the 16th July 1929.

N.B.—Should the number of candidates who have applied to be examined at any one of the above centres fall short of fifty, the candidates that selected that centre must be prepared to proceed, at their own expense to the nearest centre where the examination may be held Timely notice will be given to the candidates concerned.

2. If a candidate who belongs to any Indian State selects a centre in another Indian State, he should submit his application for admission to the examination through the educational authorities of the State to which the centre selected belongs, so that they may have an opportunity of disallowing the selected centre and directing the candidate to select a centre in the State of which he is a resident. When objection is not taken, candidates may conclude that their names will be registered for examination at the centres mentioned by them in their applications.

3. No notice will be taken of the application of any candidate who selects a centre which is not in the above list, and no candidate will be allowed to name more than one centre. No candidate will on any account be allowed to change the place of examination entered in his application, which must invariably be the place where he is employed or ordinarily resides or should it not be a centre the place nearest to it where the examination is held. A candidate appearing for examination at a centre other than the one mentioned by him in his application must be prepared to have his examination annulled.

4. In addition to the above centres, the Commissioner will be prepared to arrange for the holding of the Written examinations in any of the subjects mentioned at any other place if he is satisfied that not fewer than fifty candidates are likely to offer themselves for examination, and it is advisable to make such place a centre. Applications for the inclusion of such place or places in the list of centres should be made to the Commissioner through the local educational or other authorities concerned before the 18th August. Ordinarily, however, only one place will be constituted a centre for each district.

5. Candidates whose Examinations, either Written or Oral and Practical, cannot be arranged for at any place must, of their own expense, proceed to Madras or to the nearest centre where they are held in the subjects in which they appear.

6. The Oral and Practical Examinations in such subjects as require them will be held at those places only where satisfactory arrangements can be made for the conduct of such Examinations.

N.B.—To guard against disappointment in the case of such of the Oral and Practical Examinations as may be held before the Written Examinations, candidates are recommended to refer to Part I E of the Fort St. George Gazette from time to time as no intimation will be sent to them.

III. Scale of fees, when and where to be remitted by candidates.

1. The following is the scale of fees to be paid by candidates for admission to the examinations :—

	Lower.	Higher
	Rs.	Rs.
For each subject ..	8	12

N.B.—No candidate will be permitted to come up for examination in more than one grade in the same subject at the same time.

2. Candidates who have passed in the second class in any subject and grade may come up to qualify for the first class in that subject and grade on paying the full examination fee.

3. Where the subject is one in which the examination is divided into stages, for example,—Tailoring—candidates having failed in one or two sections in the subject and grade may come up in that section or sections on paying the full examination fee that is prescribed for that particular grade they wish to apply.

4. The prescribed fee must be paid in every case into a Government Treasury, or, if at Madras, into the Imperial Bank of India, and the receipt given by the Treasury Officer or the Imperial Bank of India attached to the application, which must in every case reach the Commissioner's office on or before the 31st August. On no account will the fees be received in the Commissioner's office whether sent in cash or by Post Office orders. Neither M.O. coupon nor any temporary receipt that may have been granted, can be accepted. It is therefore incumbent upon the candidate to obtain a receipt from the treasury officer to whom the amount was sent and forward the receipt as obtained to this office at once—care being taken to see that this receipt also reaches the office by the date prescribed for the submission of applications. No application will be registered unless it reaches the Commissioner's office by the date prescribed.

5. The fee paid will, in no case whatsoever, be refunded nor will it be reserved, for a subsequent examination. Neither will any excess fee that may have been inadvertently paid be returned. Candidates are warned to study the Notification carefully and satisfy themselves, before remitting their fees, that they fulfil the prescribed conditions of admission to the examination and that they can, if necessary, proceed, at their own expense, beyond the limits of the examination centre selected by them, for the purpose of undergoing the Written or the Oral and Practical examinations.

IV. Application Forms—Procuring of—Filling in and the submission of applications, "certified works," drawings, plans, etc., on or before the 31st August.

1. Candidates must send in their applications made out in English on printed forms so that they may reach the Commissioner's office on or before the 31st August, after which date no application will be received.

2. Candidates in the mufassal should obtain the required application forms from the treasury of the taluk in which they are residents or of the district to which they belong. Candidates in Mysore and Hyderabad States should obtain the same from the Resident's Treasury; those in Travancore, Cochin and Pudukottah States from the Agent's Treasury, Trivandrum; and those in Coorg from the Treasury Officer, Coorg, Mercara. Candidates who are residents of Madras should apply for application forms at the office of the Commissioner for Government Examinations, Cathedral Post Office (Madras), and not to the Collector of Madras.

N.B.—No notice will be taken of any application from candidates in the mufassal requesting to be supplied with application forms from this office.

3. Only one form of application should be used by each candidate, although he may bring up several subjects and come up for different grades.

4. The subject, the applicant desires to be examined in should be specified exactly as it is described in the Notification regulating these Examinations.

5. Heads of institutions are requested to see, before the certificate at the foot of the application form is signed by them, that their institution has been recognized by the Director of Public Instruction, Madras, or by the Director of Industries, Madras, as fitted to impart instruction in the Technical subjects and for the grades in them brought up by their pupils.

N.B.—Heads of institutions recognized for General Education only should not sign the certificate at the foot of the application form filled in by any of their pupils coming up for any of the Technical Examinations.

6. All pupils coming up from the same institution must select the same centre, and the applications of all of them should be forwarded together (along with a covering letter stating the number of applications) by the head of that institution, no application of any private candidates being enclosed with these applications.

7. Every application should contain satisfactory proof of the applicant's general educational attainments by reason of which he is eligible to appear for the examinations in the subjects and for the grades in them brought up by him.

8. Candidates should write their names, their father's names and their house names distinctly and in full in their applications; if 'Other Hindus' they should state in column 3 of their applications whether they are 'Non-Brahman Caste Hindus,' 'Adi Dravidas' or 'Adi Andhras'.

9. The occupation or profession of candidates, or the appointments held by them and their addresses should invariably be stated in full in column 10 of their applications.

NOTE.—(1) Candidates are particularly requested to note carefully the footnotes (printed under the heading I Subjects of Examination) which they fill in the application forms and such particulars as are necessary, must invariably be noted by them in their applications in unequivocal terms.

(2) Applications defective in any particular will be returned.

10. Each candidate must, wherever the syllabus requires it, submit, before the 31st August, the necessary drawings, plans, surveys, field books, estimates, or other "certified works". Each of the drawings, etc., submitted must have entered on it the name of the candidate, the subject and grade of examination for which he appears and the centre at which he appears, and must be certified to be his own unaided work by the head of the institution or office to which he belongs, by an officer of the Public Works Department not below the rank of Supervisor, by a District Board Engineer, by the Engineer of the Corporation of Madras, or by an Engineer of any Railway Company.

Candidates are specially warned that no certified works will be valued by the examiners unless the certificate of authorship is in each case quite satisfactory and specifies clearly the period of time occupied in the execution of each work and unless the examiners are satisfied as to the identity and qualifications of the persons granting the certificate. Further, if any suspicion attaches to any certified works submitted by pupils from technical schools, the Commissioner will be compelled to recommend to the Director of Public Instruction or to the Director of Industries the withdrawal of the departmental privileges enjoyed by the schools. Private candidates, whose certified works are in any way suspected by the examiners, will be liable to have their examination invalidated and also to be debarred from appearing for any of the examinations under the control of the Commissioner for such term of years as the Commissioner may think fit.

It must be particularly noted that the drawing, etc., of each candidate should be submitted in a separate roll for each subject and for each grade (i.e., the drawings, etc., for a number of subjects should not be rolled up together), and that the drawings, etc., of a number of candidates should not be sent in one and the same roll. Also on the outside of each roll for each subject each candidate should enter the following particulars in ink:—

(1) Name of candidate,
(2) Place of examination,
(3) Subject,
(4) Grade, and
(5) Total number of drawings in each roll.

As the application has to be kept in the office and as the drawings, etc., have to be forwarded to the examiners, the application itself should be sent in a separate cover and not rolled up with the drawings, etc.

A candidate who failed, or having applied, did not appear, at a previous examination, must submit fresh drawings, etc. The drawings, etc., submitted will on no account be returned.

11. In submitting an application for admission to any examination the candidate will be deemed to have given an undertaking that he will abide by all the rules now in force or those to be brought into effect hereafter in respect of that examination, including the following:—No revaluation of answer papers is permissible.

Candidates are warned that the application itself should not be enclosed with any drawings, plans, surveys, field books, estimates, or other 'certified works' that may be sent, but should be submitted in a separate cover.

12. Each application should be sent direct to the undersigned, post paid, superscribed and addressed as follows, the receipt for the fee paid being securely fastened to it:—

[Application for admission to the Government Technical Examinations.]

To

The Secretary to the Commissioner for Government Examinations, Cathedral Post Office (Madras).

N.B.—Candidates anxious to assure themselves that their applications have been received should enclose an addressed postcard in their respective applications. The postcards should bear the sender's address only and no other writing. Such postcards will be returned to them in due course with the 'Received' stamp of the office impressed upon them. No other form of acknowledgment except that required by the Postal rules regarding registered covers can possibly be given nor will any notice be taken of any letter from any candidate inquiring whether his application has been received. Insufficiently stamped covers will be rejected.

V. Draft Time-table.

Subject to any changes that it may be necessary or convenient to make in the arrangements, the Written examinations will be conducted in the order of time and subjects shown in the following table :—

Note.—Candidates will not be allowed to come up in more than one of the subjects bracketed together for the same time on the same day in the table below, or for more than one grade of examination in the same subject at one and the same session of examination.

Report of the Special Committee on Indian Sale of Goods Bill 183

Bills introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

REPORT OF THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

To

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

In accordance with the Legislative Department Resolution No 47-I/29-C & G, dated the 28th March 1929 (Appendix A), we, the members of the Committee appointed by the Government of India to examine the provisions of the Indian Sale of Goods Bill, have the honour to submit the following report:—

1 The constitution of the Committee was as follows:—

CHAIRMAN

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Lal Mitter, Kt., Bar.-at-Law, Law Member of the Council of the Governor-General.

MEMBERS.

(1) Mr D. F Mulla, C.I.E., M.A., LL.B., Officiating Advocate-General, Bombay.
(2) Mr. M R Jayakar, M.A., LL.B., Bar.-at-Law, M.L.A.
(3) Mr. Alladi Krishnaswami Ayyar, Advocate-General, Madras.

Mr W. T. M Wright, C.I.E., I.C.S., Joint Secretary and Draftsman to the Government of India, Legislative Department, attended the meetings of the Committee, and Mr. J. U. Dastandhar, LL.B., Assistant Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Legal Department, acted as Secretary to the Committee.

2 The Committee assembled at Simla on the 29th April 1929, when its first meeting was held, and continued its deliberations daily until the 9th May 1929. A Bill to amend and define the law relating to the sale of goods, with the notes setting forth the reasons for the proposed amendments, which had already been prepared in the Legislative Department of the Government of India, was placed before us, and formed the basis of our discussions.

3. Before the passing of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, Chapter VII, of which contains the law relating to the sale of goods or movables, the law on this subject was not only not uniform throughout British India but was also, outside the limits of the original jurisdiction of the High Courts, extremely uncertain in its application. Within the limits of the Presidency-towns, the rules of English law, including those in the Statute of Frauds, were applied, whilst in the mofussil it was doubtful whether the Statute of Frauds was applicable and, as observed by the Indian Law Commissioners in their second report, the Judge was to a great extent without the guidance of any positive law beyond the rule that his decision should be such as he deemed to be in accordance with "justice, equity and good conscience". To remedy this unsatisfactory state of affairs, the Indian Law Commissioners framed, in their second report, dated the 28th July 1869, a set of rules relating to the general law of contracts including therein provisions relating to the sale of movables. The draft of the Law Commissioners underwent several changes at the hands of the then Law Members, Sir Henry Maine and Sir James Stephen, and also in the Select Committee of the Indian Legislature. But, as stated by Sir James Stephen himself while presenting the report of the Select Committee on the Indian Contract Bill, the chapter on the sale of goods, except in regard to the rule as to market overt, represented generally the English law on the subject as it then stood.

4. The rules of English law relating to the sale of goods had grown up mainly out of judicial decisions. Along with the general law of contract, they were the product of many generations and were adapted to the circumstances and exigencies of the times and the dealings of the people. They were, however, largely dominated by the provisions of the Statute of Frauds which was passed in the reign of Charles The Second. The Law Commissioners, as well as those who were ultimately responsible for framing the Indian Contract Act, at once realized that the provisions of the Statute of Frauds, although followed in the Presidency towns, were not suitable to the conditions prevailing in the country, and that "any law relating to this important subject must at any rate be free from the inexpressible confusion and intricacy which is thrown over every part of that Statute in consequence of its vague language".

5 In 1870, various branches of law were being codified in British India. The main object in view was, in the words of Sir James Stephen, "that of providing a body of law to the Government of the country as expressed that it might be readily understood both by English and Native Government servants without extrinsic help from the English law libraries". What was urgently needed was a guide for the judge or magistrate who had but little legal training, derived little or no assistance from the Bar and worked at a distance from any law library.

6. Whatever merit the simple and elementary rules embodied in the Indian Contract Act may have had, and however sufficient and suitable they may have been for the needs which they were intended to meet in 1872, the passage of time has revealed defects the removal of which has become necessary in order to keep the law abreast of the developments of modern business relations. The law relating to the sale of goods applicable mainly to mercantile transactions. There can be no doubt that during the last half century conditions in this country relating to trade and business have undergone material changes. Methods of business have largely altered and new relations have arisen between man and man. In dealing with these relations, it has been necessary to give recognition to new principles, and the Indian Courts have found that a law enacted more than fifty years ago is entirely inadequate to enable them to deal with these new relations or give effect to the new principles. The result has been that on various occasions the Courts have had to hold that Chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act is not exhaustive, and to import therein analogies from the decisions of the English Courts.

7. The English law relating to the sale of goods which was admittedly the basis of Chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act has itself since 1872 undergone drastic changes, and was finally codified in 1893 by the present Sale of Goods Act (56 & 57 Vict., C. 71), which discards many of the old common law rules upon which Chapter VII of the Indian Act was based, in favour of provisions more suited to modern conditions or more convenient in actual practice.

8. By the Bill referred for our consideration, the law relating particularly to the sale of goods is embodied in a separate enactment, although many of the general principles contained in the Indian Contract Act will continue to be applicable thereto. When Sir James Stephen moved the Indian Contract Bill, he admitted that it was not, and could not pretend to be, a complete code upon the branch of law to which it related. He, however, expressed a hope that in later years it would be easy to enact supplementary chapters relating to the several branches of the law of contract which the Bill did not touch. This hope has never been fulfilled. In later years it was found more convenient to have separate enactments for the several branches of the law of contract, e.g., the Transfer of Property Act, the Negotiable Instruments Act, and the Merchant Shipping Act. In our opinion, in view of the complexity of modern conditions, the time has now come when this process should be accelerated by embodying the different branches of law relating to contract in separate self-contained enactments; and we hope that the Bill which we attach to our Report may be passed into law at no early date and may be but the first of the series required to complete the task which we have outlined above.

9. The Bill referred to us was mainly based on the English Sale of Goods Act, 1893. This Act has stood the test of nearly thirty-five years of practical application, and in the words of Lord Parker in re Parahim [1916] A. C. 157 at pages 160 161, "is a very successful and correct codification of this branch of the mercantile law". As is shown in Appendix B to our Report, most of the Colonies and Overseas Dominions have adopted and re-enacted the Act with only such small variations as have been found necessary to adapt its provisions to local circumstances. It is also remarkable that the Uniform Sales Act, passed in 1906 in the United States of America and adopted in twenty out of fifty-three States and territories, is based very largely on the English Act. These facts constitute striking evidence of the completeness and the universal suitability of its provisions.

10. In mercantile transactions a conflict of laws should, as far as possible, be avoided. Uniformity of law in various countries, particularly in those which have business or trade dealings with one another, is highly convenient and desirable. We, therefore, approve of the proposal to adopt the provisions of the English Sale of Goods Act so far as they are suitable to Indian conditions as the basis for the present Bill, and thus to make the Indian Law relating to the sale of goods as nearly as possible uniform with the law in force in other parts of the British Empire.

11. The provisions of the English Act are far more elaborate and comprehensive than those of Chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act, and in their arrangement the English Act is more logical and methodical. As we have already observed, it has revised and brought up to date the rules of the English Common Law. Moreover, the adoption of the English Act as the basis of the present Bill will enable Indian Courts to interpret its provisions in the light of the decisions of the English Courts.

12. In adopting the provisions of the English Act we have not been unmindful of the needs and exigencies of this country. Wherever it has been found that a rule obtaining in England, such as that relating to market overt, is not suitable to Indian conditions, the rule has been rejected. We have, moreover, carefully scrutinised the provisions of the English Act in the light of the decisions of English Courts since 1893, and where those decisions have shown the provisions of the English Act to be defective or ambiguous, we have attempted to improve upon them. We have also retained several of the provisions of the Indian Contract Act which we consider necessary or useful to meet special conditions existing in India. The Bill as revised by us on the above lines is attached to our Report as Appendix C.

13. A detailed explanation of the various clauses of the Bill is set out in our notes in Appendix D. But we think it desirable to draw attention to the following few points of importance:

(a) The present Bill embodies the principle that the question whether a contract for the sale of goods does or does not pass the property in the goods from the buyer to the seller must in all cases be determined by the intention of the parties to the contract. The provisions of Chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act are vague and conflicting on this point. The Bill codifies the rules by which that intention may be ascertained, but the operation of these rules will be displaced by any terms of the contract defining the intention or by any attendant circumstances, including the conduct of the parties, rendering it ascertainable. In following this principle, we have borne in mind that in mercantile matters the certainty of the rule is often of more importance than the substance. If the parties know beforehand what their legal position is, they can provide for their particular wants by express stipulations. Sale, after all, is a consensual contract, and the Bill does not prevent the parties from making any bargain they please. Its object is to lay down clear rules for the cases where the parties have either framed no intention or failed to express it.

(b) The distinction between a sale and an agreement to sell, which was not clear in Chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act, has been clearly brought out. This distinction is very necessary to determine the rights and liabilities of the parties to the contract.

(c) It is made clear that a contract of sale can be made by mere offer and acceptance. Neither payment nor delivery is necessary for the purpose.

(d) Before 1893 the law in England relating to warranties and conditions was in a very confused state. In the Indian Contract Act the word "warranty" has been used in a very vague sense. In some provisions it denotes a condition which would enable a party aggrieved by its breach to repudiate the contract, while in others it enables him to claim damages only. In the Bill this ambiguity has been removed.

(e) There is much conflict of decisions in India regarding the meaning of section 108 of the Indian Contract Act which relates to sales by ostensible owners. This is to a certain extent due to the obscure phraseology of the section itself. We had tried to remove this obscurity in clauses 27 to 30 of the Bill to simplify the law on the subject.

(f) We have elaborated the rules relating to delivery to carriers, stoppage in transit and auction sales.

(g) We have anxiously considered the question of the retention of the Illustrations appearing in Chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act and of the insertion of Illustrations to new provisions. Our decision is that the better policy is to forego all Illustrations, leaving the Courts to construe the sections as they stand.

14. In conclusion, we desire to place on record our high sense of obligation to Mr. W. T. M. Wright and Mr. J. R. Dhurandar, who attended the meetings of the Committee and took part in its deliberations. Mr. Wright rendered us great assistance in drafting the clauses of the Bill and in preparing this report. Mr. Dhurandhar who acted as Secretary brought to bear upon the work great industry in collecting references and otherwise assisting us in the preparation of our notes.

APPENDIX A.

RESOLUTION.

New Delhi, the 28th March 1928.

No. 47-I/29-C. & G.—The Government of India have had under consideration the desirability of codifying the law relating to the sale of goods in a separate enactment which will replace Chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. A preliminary draft Bill has been prepared which the Governor General in Council has decided to remit to a small Committee of experts before it is introduced in the Indian Legislature. The previous examination of a highly technical piece of legislation of this character by a Committee composed of lawyers of eminence will, he feels assured, command general approval. The Committee will be constituted as follows:—

President—The Honourable Sir B. L. Mitter, Kt., Bar-at-Law, Law Member of the Council of the Governor-General.

Members—Mr. D. F. Mulla, C.I.E., M.A., LL.B., Officiating Advocate-General, Bombay, Mr. M. R. Jayakar, M.L.A., Bar-at-Law, and Mr. Alladi Krishnaswami Ayyar, Advocate-General, Madras.

The Committee will meet in Simla by the 23th April 1920. The Government of India hope to introduce the Bill during the next session of the Indian Legislature.

CHAPTER II.

FORMATION OF THE CONTRACT.

Contract of sale.

Sale and agreement to sell.

6. (1) A contract of sale of goods is a contract whereby the seller transfers or agrees to transfer the property in goods to the buyer for a price. There may be a contract of sale between one part-owner and another.

(2) A contract of sale may be absolute or conditional.

(3) Where under a contract of sale the property in the goods is transferred from the seller to the buyer, the contract is called a sale, but where the transfer of the property in the goods is to take place at a future time or subject to some condition thereafter to be fulfilled, the contract is called an agreement to sell.

(4) An agreement to sell becomes a sale when the time elapses or the conditions are fulfilled subject to which the property in the goods is to be transferred.

Formalities of the contract

Contract of sale how made

5. (1) A contract of sale is made by an offer to buy or sell goods for a price and the acceptance of such offer. The contract may provide for the immediate delivery of the goods or immediate payment of the price or both, or that the delivery or payment or both shall be postponed.

(2) Subject to the provisions of any law for the time being in force, a contract of sale may be made in writing or by word of mouth, or partly in writing and partly by word of mouth or may be implied from the conduct of the parties.

Subject matter of Contract.

Existing or future goods.

6. (1) The goods which form the subject of a contract of sale may be either existing goods, owned or possessed by the seller, or future goods.

(2) There may be a contract for the sale of goods the acquisition of which by the seller depends upon a contingency which may or may not happen.

(3) Where by a contract of sale the seller purports to effect a present sale of future goods, the contract operates as an agreement to sell the goods

Goods perishing before making of contract.

7. Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods, the contract is void if the goods without the knowledge of the seller have, at the time when the contract was made, perished or become so damaged as no longer to answer to their description in the contract.

Goods perishing before sale but after agreement to sell.

8. Where there is an agreement to sell specific goods, the agreement becomes void if, subsequently thereto and before the risk passes to the buyer, the goods without any fault on the part of the seller or buyer perish or become so damaged as no longer to answer to their description in the contract

The Price.

Ascertainment of price.

9. (1) The price in a contract of sale may be fixed by the contract or may be left to be fixed in manner thereby agreed or may be determined by the course of dealing between the parties.

(2) Where the price is not determined in accordance with the foregoing provisions, the buyer is to pay the seller a reasonable price. What is a reasonable price is a question of fact dependent on the circumstances of each particular case.

Agreement to sell at valuation.

10. (1) Where there is an agreement to sell goods on the terms that the price is to be fixed by the valuation of a third party and such third party cannot or does not make such valuation, the agreement becomes void:

Provided that, if the goods or any part thereof have been delivered to, and appropriated by, the buyer, he must pay a reasonable price therefor.

(2) Where such third party is prevented from making the valuation by the fault of the seller or buyer, the party not in fault may maintain a suit for damages against the party in fault.

Conditions and Warranties.

Stipulations as to time.

11. Unless a different intention appears from the terms of the contract, stipulations as to time of payment are not deemed to be of the essence of a contract of sale. Whether any other stipulation as to time is of the essence of the contract or not depends on the terms of the contract.

Condition and warranty.

12. (1) A stipulation in a contract of sale with reference to goods which are the subject thereof may be a condition or a warranty.

(2) A condition is a stipulation essential to the main purpose of the contract, the breach of which gives rise to a right to treat the contract as repudiated.

(3) A warranty is a stipulation collateral to the main purpose of the contract, the breach of which gives rise to a claim for damages but not to a right to reject the goods.

(4) Whether a stipulation in a contract of sale is a condition or a warranty depends in each case on the construction of the contract. The stipulation may be a condition, though called a warranty in the contract.

When condition to be treated as warranty.

13. (1) Where a contract of sale is subject to any condition to be fulfilled by the seller, the buyer may waive the condition or elect to treat the breach of the condition as a breach of warranty and not as a ground for treating the contract as repudiated.

(2) Where a contract of sale is not severable and the buyer has accepted the goods or part thereof, or where the contract is for specific goods the property in which has passed to the buyer, the breach of any condition to be fulfilled by the seller can only be treated as a breach of warranty and not as a ground for rejecting the goods and treating the contract as repudiated, unless there is a term of the contract, express or implied, to that effect.

(3) Nothing in this section shall affect the case of any condition or warranty fulfilment of which is excused by law by reason of impossibility or otherwise.

Implied undertaking as to title, etc.

14. In a contract of sale, unless the circumstances of the contract are such as to show a different intention, there is—

(a) an implied condition on the part of the seller that, in the case of a sale, he has a right to sell the goods and that, in the case of an agreement to sell, he will have a right to sell the goods at the time when the property is to pass;

(b) an implied warranty that the buyer shall have and enjoy quiet possession of the goods;

(c) an implied warranty that the goods shall be free from any charge or encumbrance in favour of any third party not declared or known to the buyer before or at the time when the contract is made.

Sale by description.

15. Where there is a contract for the sale of goods by description, there is an implied condition that the goods shall correspond with the description; and, if the sale is by sample as well as by description, it is not sufficient that the bulk of the goods corresponds with the sample if the goods do not also correspond with the description.

Implied conditions as to quality or fitness.

16. Subject to the provisions of this Act and of any other law for the time being in force, there is no implied warranty or condition as to the quality or fitness for any particular purpose of goods supplied under a contract of sale, except as follows:—

(1) Where the buyer, expressly or by implication, makes known to the seller the particular purpose for which the goods are required, so as to show that the buyer relies on the seller's skill or judgment, and the goods are of a description which it is in the course of the seller's business to supply (whether he is the manufacturer or producer or not), there is an implied condition that the goods shall be reasonably fit for such purpose:

Provided that, in the case of a contract for the sale of a specified article under its patent or other trade name, there is no implied condition as to its fitness for any particular purpose.

(2) Where goods are bought by description from a seller who deals in goods of that description (whether he is the manufacturer or producer or not), there is an implied condition that the goods shall be of merchantable quality:

Provided that, if the buyer has examined the goods, there shall be no implied condition as regards defects which such examination ought to have revealed.

(3) An implied warranty or condition as to quality or fitness for a particular purpose may be annexed by the usage of trade.

(4) An express warranty or condition does not negative a warranty or condition implied by this Act unless inconsistent therewith.

Sale by sample.

17. (1) A contract of sale is a contract for sale by sample where there is a term in the contract, express or implied, to that effect.

(2) In the case of a contract for sale by sample there is an implied condition—

(a) that the bulk shall correspond with the sample in quality;

(b) that the buyer shall have a reasonable opportunity of comparing the bulk with the sample;

(c) that the goods shall be free from any defect, rendering them unmerchantable, which would not be apparent on reasonable examination of the sample.

CHAPTER III.

EFFECTS OF THE CONTRACT.

Transfer of property as between seller and buyer.

Goods must be ascertained.

18. Where there is a contract for the sale of unascertained goods, no property in the goods is transferred to the buyer unless and until the goods are ascertained.

Property passes when intended to pass.

19. (1) Where there is a contract for the sale of specific or ascertained goods the property in them is transferred to the buyer at such time as the parties to the contract intend it to be transferred.

(2) For the purpose of ascertaining the intention of the parties regard shall be had to the terms of the contract, the conduct of the parties and the circumstances of the case.

(3) Unless a different intention appears, the rules contained in sections 20 to 24 are rules for ascertaining the intention of the parties as to the time at which the property in the goods is to pass to the buyer.

Specific goods in a deliverable state.

20. Where there is an unconditional contract for the sale of specific goods in a deliverable state, the property in the goods passes to the buyer when the contract is made, and it is immaterial whether the time of payment of the price or the time of delivery of the goods, or both, is postponed.

Specific goods to be put into a deliverable state.

21. Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods and the seller is bound to do something to the goods for the purpose of putting them into a deliverable state, the property does not pass until such thing is done and the buyer has notice thereof.

Specific goods in a deliverable state, when seller has to do anything thereto in order to ascertain price.

22. Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods in a deliverable state, but the seller is bound to weigh, measure, test or do some other act or thing with reference to the goods for the purpose of ascertaining the price, the property does not pass until such act or thing is done and the buyer has notice thereof.

Sale of unascertained goods and appropriation.

23. (1) Where there is a contract for the sale of unascertained or future goods by description and goods of that description and in a deliverable state are unconditionally appropriated to the contract, either by the seller with the assent of the buyer or by the buyer with the assent of the seller, the property in the goods thereupon passes to the buyer. Such assent may be express or implied, and may be given either before or after the appropriation is made.

Delivery of carrier.

(2) Where, in pursuance of the contract, the seller delivers the goods to the buyer or to a carrier or other bailee (whether named by the buyer or not) for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, and does not reserve the right of disposal, he is deemed to have unconditionally appropriated the goods to the contract.

Goods sent on approval or "on sale or return."

24. When goods are delivered to the buyer on approval or "on sale or return" or other similar terms, the property therein passes to the buyer—

(a) when he signifies his approval or acceptance to the seller or does any other act adopting the transaction;

(b) if he does not signify his approval or acceptance to the seller but retains the goods without giving notice of rejection, then, if a time has been fixed for the return of the goods, on the expiration of such time, and, if no time has been fixed, on the expiration of a reasonable time.

Reservation of right of disposal.

25. (1) Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods or where goods are subsequently appropriated to the contract, the seller may, by the terms of the contract or appropriation, reserve the right of disposal of the goods until certain conditions are fulfilled. In such case, notwithstanding the delivery of the goods to a buyer, or to a carrier or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, the property in the goods does not pass to the buyer until the conditions imposed by the seller are fulfilled.

(2) Where goods are shipped, and by the bill of lading the goods are deliverable to the order of the seller or his agent, the seller is prima facie deemed to reserve the right of disposal.

(3) Where the seller of goods draws on the buyer for the price and transmits the bill of exchange and bill of lading to the buyer together, to secure acceptance or payment of the bill of exchange, the buyer is bound to return the bill of lading if he does not honour the bill of exchange and if he wrongfully retains the bill of lading the property in the goods does not pass to him.

Risk prima facie passes with property.

26. Unless otherwise agreed, the goods remain at the seller's risk until the property therein is transferred to the buyer, but when the property therein is transferred to the buyer, the goods are at the buyer's risk whether delivery has been made or not:

Provided that, where delivery has been delayed through the fault of either buyer or seller, the goods are at the risk of the party in fault as regards any loss which might not have occurred but for such fault:

Provided also that nothing in this section shall affect the duties or liabilities of either seller or buyer as a bailee of the goods of the other party.

Sale by person not the owner.

27. Subject to the provisions of this Act and of any other law for the time being in force, where goods are sold by a person who is not the owner thereof and who does not sell them under the authority or with the consent of the owner, the buyer acquires no better title to the goods than the seller had, unless the owner of the goods is by his conduct precluded from denying the seller's authority to sell:

Provided that where an agent, having in the customary course of his business authority to sell goods or to consign goods for the purpose of sale or to buy goods or to raise money on the security of goods, is, with the consent of the owner, in possession of goods or of the documents of title to goods, any sale of the goods made by him shall be as valid as if he were expressly authorised by the owner of the goods to make the same; provided that the buyer acts in good faith and has not at the time of the contract of sale notice that the seller has not authority to sell.

Sale by one of joint owners.

28. If one of several joint owners of goods has the sole possession of them by permission of the co-owners, the property in the goods is transferred to any person who buys them of such joint owner in good faith and has not at the time of the contract of sale notice that the seller has not authority to sell.

Sale by person having voidable title.

29. Where the seller of goods has a voidable title thereto but his title has not been avoided at the time of the sale, the buyer acquires a good title to the goods if he buys them in good faith and without notice as to the seller's defect of title and if the circumstances rendering the contract voidable have not amounted to an offence committed by the seller or a person through or under whom the seller claims.

Seller or buyer in possession after sale.

30. (1) Where a person, having sold goods, continues or is in possession of the goods or of the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person of the goods or documents of title under any sale, pledge or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of the previous sale shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were expressly authorised by the owner of the goods to make the same.

(2) Where a person, having bought or agreed to buy goods, obtains, with the consent of the seller, possession of the goods or the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person of the goods or documents of title under any sale, pledge or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of any lien or other right of the original seller in respect of the goods shall have effect as if such lien or right did not exist.

CHAPTER IV

PERFORMANCE OF THE CONTRACT.

Duties of seller and buyer.

31. It is the duty of the seller to deliver the goods and of the buyer to accept and pay for them, in accordance with the terms of the contract of sale.

Payment and delivery are concurrent conditions.

32. Unless otherwise agreed, delivery of the goods and payment of the price are concurrent conditions, that is to say, the seller must be ready and willing to give possession of the goods to the buyer in exchange for the price, and the buyer must be ready and willing to pay the price in exchange for possession of the goods.

Delivery.

33. Delivery of goods sold may be made by doing anything which the parties agree shall be treated as delivery or which has the effect of putting the goods in the possession of the buyer or of any person authorized to hold them on his behalf.

Effect of part delivery

34. A delivery of part of goods, in progress of the delivery of the whole, has the same effect, for the purpose of passing the property in such goods, as a delivery of the whole; but a delivery of part of the goods, with an intention of severing it from the whole, does not operate as a delivery of the remainder.

Buyer to apply for delivery.

35. Apart from any express contract, the seller of goods is not bound to deliver them until the buyer applies for delivery.

Rules as to delivery.

36. (1) Whether it is for the buyer to take possession of the goods or for the seller to send them to the buyer is a question depending in each case on the contract, express or implied, between the parties.

(2) Apart from any contract, express or implied, as to place of delivery, goods sold are to be delivered at the place at which they are at the time of the sale, and goods contracted to be sold are to be delivered at the place at which they are at the time of the contract for sale, or, if not then in existence, at the place at which they are manufactured or produced.

(3) Where under the contract of sale the seller is bound to send the goods to the buyer, but no time for sending them is fixed, the seller is bound to send them within a reasonable time.

(4) Where the goods at the time of sale or in possession of a third person, there is no delivery by seller to buyer unless and until such third person acknowledges to the buyer that he holds the goods on his behalf:

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the operation of the issue or transfer of any document of title to goods.

(5) Demand or tender of delivery may be treated as ineffectual unless made at a reasonable hour. What is a reasonable hour is a question of fact.

(6) Unless otherwise agreed, the expenses of and incidental to putting the goods into a deliverable state must be borne by the seller.

Delivery of wrong quantity.

37. (1) Where the seller delivers to the buyer a quantity of goods less than he contracted to sell the buyer may reject them, but if the buyer accepts the goods so delivered he must pay for them at the contract rate.

(2) Where the seller delivers to the buyer a quantity of goods larger than he contracted to sell, the buyer may accept the goods included in the contract and reject the rest, or he may reject the whole. If the buyer accepts the whole of the goods so delivered, he must pay for them at the contract rate.

(3) Where the seller delivers to the buyer the goods he contracted to sell mixed with goods of a different description not included in the contract, the buyer may accept the goods which are in accordance with the contract and reject the rest, or may reject the whole.

(4) The provisions of this section are subject to any usage of trade, special agreement or course of dealing between the parties.

Instalment deliveries.

38. (1) Unless otherwise agreed, the buyer of goods is not bound to accept delivery thereof by instalments.

(3) Where there is a contract for the sale of goods to be delivered by stated instalments which are to be separately paid for, and the seller makes no delivery or defective delivery in respect of one or more instalments, or the buyer neglects or refuses to take delivery of or pay for one or more instalments, it is a question in each case depending on the terms of the contract and the circumstances of the case, whether the breach of contract is a repudiation of the whole contract, or whether it is a severable breach giving rise to a claim for compensation, but not to a right to treat the whole contract as repudiated.

Delivery to carrier or wharfinger.

39. (1) Where, in pursuance of a contract of sale, the seller is authorised or required to send the goods to the buyer, delivery of the goods to a carrier, whether named by the buyer or not, for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, or delivery of the goods to a wharfinger for safe custody, is prima facie deemed to be a delivery of the goods to the buyer.

(2) Unless otherwise authorised by the buyer, the seller must make such contract with the carrier or wharfinger on behalf of the buyer as may be reasonable having regard to the nature of the goods and the other circumstances of the case. If the seller omits so to do, and the goods are lost or damaged in course of transit or whilst in the custody of the wharfinger, the buyer may decline to treat the delivery to the carrier or wharfinger as a delivery to himself, or may hold the seller responsible in damages.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed, where goods are sent by the seller to the buyer by a route involving sea transit, in circumstances in which it is usual to insure, the seller must give such notice to the buyer as may enable him to insure them during their sea transit, and if the seller fails so to do, the goods shall be deemed to be at his risk during such sea transit.

Risk where goods are delivered at distant place

40. Where the seller of goods agrees to deliver them at his own risk at a place other than that where they are when sold, the buyer must, nevertheless, unless otherwise agreed, take any risk of deterioration in the goods necessarily incident to the course of transit.

Buyer's right of examining the goods.

41. (1) Where goods are delivered to the buyer which he has not previously examined, he is not deemed to have accepted them unless and until he has had a reasonable opportunity of examining them for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in conformity with the contract.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed, when the seller tenders delivery of goods to the buyer, he is bound, on request, to afford the buyer a reasonable opportunity of examining the goods for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in conformity with the contract.

Acceptance

42. The buyer is deemed to have accepted the goods when he intimates to the seller that he has accepted them, or when the goods have been delivered to him and he does any act in relation to them which is inconsistent with the ownership of the seller, or when, after the lapse of a reasonable time, he retains the goods without intimating to the seller that he has rejected them.

Buyer not bound to return rejected goods.

43. Unless otherwise agreed, where goods are delivered to the buyer and he refuses to accept them, having the right so to do, he is not bound to return them to the seller, but it is sufficient if he intimates to the seller that he refuses to accept them.

Liability of buyer for neglecting or refusing delivery of goods.

44. When the seller is ready and willing to deliver the goods and requests the buyer to take delivery, and the buyer does not within a reasonable time after such request take delivery of the goods, he is liable to the seller for any loss occasioned by his neglect or refusal to take delivery, and also for a reasonable charge for the care and custody of the goods:

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the rights of the seller where the neglect or refusal of the buyer to take delivery amounts to a repudiation of the contract.

CHAPTER V.

RIGHTS OF UNPAID SELLER AGAINST THE GOODS.

"Unpaid seller" defined.

45. (1) The seller of goods is deemed to be an "unpaid seller" within the meaning of this Act—

(a) when the whole of the price has not been paid or tendered;

(b) when a bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument has been received as conditional payment, and the condition on which it was received has not been fulfilled by reason of the dishonour of the instrument or otherwise.

(2) In this Chapter, the term "seller" includes any person who is in the position of a seller, as, for instance, an agent of the seller to whom the bill of lading has been indorsed, or a consignor or agent who has himself paid or is directly responsible for the price.

Unpaid seller's rights.

46. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act and of any law for the time being in force, notwithstanding that the property in the goods may have passed to the buyer, the unpaid seller of goods, as such, has by implication of law—

(a) a lien on the goods for the price while he is in possession them;

(b) in case of the insolvency of the buyer a right of stopping the goods in transit after he has parted with the possession of them;

(c) a right of resale as limited by this Act.

(2) Where the property in goods has not passed to the buyer, the unpaid seller has, in addition to his other remedies, a right of withholding delivery similar to and co-extensive with his rights of lien and stoppage in transit where the property has passed to the buyer.

Unpaid seller's lien.

Seller's lien.

47. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the unpaid seller of goods who is in possession of them is entitled to retain possession of them until payment or tender of the price in the following cases, namely:—

(a) where the goods have been sold without any stipulation as to credit;

(b) where the goods have been sold on credit but the term of credit has expired;

(c) where the buyer becomes insolvent.

(2) The seller may exercise his right of lien notwithstanding he is in possession of the goods as agent or bailee for the buyer.

Part delivery.

48. Where an unpaid seller has made part delivery of the goods, he may exercise his right of lien on the remainder, unless such part delivery has been made under such circumstances as to shew an agreement to waive the lien.

Termination of lien.

49. (1) The unpaid seller of goods loses his lien thereon—

(a) when he delivers the goods to a carrier or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer without reserving the right of disposal of the goods;

(b) when the buyer or his agent lawfully obtains possession of the goods;

(c) by waiver thereof.

(2) The unpaid seller of goods, having a lien thereon, does not lose his lien by reason only that he has obtained a decree for the price of the goods.

Stoppage in transit.

Right of stoppage in transit.

50. Subject to the provisions of this Act, when the buyer of goods becomes insolvent, the unpaid seller who has parted with the possession of the goods has the right of stopping them in transit, that is to say, he may resume possession of the goods as long as they are in the course of transit, and may retain them until payment or tender of the price.

Duration of transit.

51. (1) Goods are deemed to be in course of transit from the time when they are delivered to a carrier or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, until the buyer or his agent in that behalf takes delivery of them from such carrier or other bailee

(2) If the buyer or his agent in that behalf obtains delivery of the goods before their arrival at the appointed destination, the transit is at an end.

(3) If, after the arrival of the goods at the appointed destination, the carrier or other bailee acknowledges to the buyer or his agent that he holds the goods on his behalf and continues in possession of them as bailee for the buyer or his agent, the transit is at an end and it is immaterial that a further destination for the goods may have been indicated by the buyer.

(4) If the goods are rejected by the buyer and the carrier or other bailee continues in possession of them, the transit is not deemed to be at an end, even if the seller has refused to receive them back.

(5) When goods are delivered to a ship chartered by the buyer, it is a question depending on the circumstances of the particular case, whether they are in the possession of the master as a carrier or as agent of the buyer.

(6) Where the carrier or other bailee wrongfully refuses to deliver the goods to the buyer or his agent in that behalf, the transit is deemed to be at an end.

(7) Where part delivery of the goods has been made to the buyer or his agent in that behalf, the remainder of the goods may be stopped in transit, unless such part delivery has been given in such circumstances as to show an agreement to give up possession of the whole of the goods.

How stoppage in transit is effected.

52. (1) The unpaid seller may exercise his right of stoppage in transit either by taking actual possession of the goods, or by giving notice of his claim to the carrier or other bailee in whose possession the goods are. Such notice may be given either to the person in actual possession of the goods or to his principal. In the latter case the notice, to be effectual, must be given at such time and in such circumstances that the principal, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, may communicate it to his servant or agent in time to prevent a delivery to the buyer.

(2) When notice of stoppage in transit is given by the seller to the carrier or other bailee in possession of the goods, he must re-deliver the goods to, or according to the directions of, the seller. The expenses of such re-delivery must be borne by the seller.

Re-sale

Effect of sub-sale or pledge by buyer

53. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the unpaid seller's right of lien or stoppage in transit is not affected by any sale or other disposition of the goods which the buyer may have made, unless the seller has assented thereto:

Provided that where a document of title to goods has been issued or lawfully transferred to any person as buyer or owner of the goods, and that person transfers the document to a person who takes the document in good faith and for consideration, then, if such last-mentioned transfer was by way of sale, the unpaid seller's right of lien or stoppage in transit is defeated, and, if such last-mentioned transfer was by way of pledge or other disposition for value, the unpaid seller's right of lien or stoppage in transit can only be exercised subject to the rights of the transferee.

(2) Where the transfer is by way of pledge, the unpaid seller may require the pledgee to have the amount secured by the pledge satisfied in the first instance, so far as possible, out of any other goods or securities of the buyer in the hands of the pledgee and available against the buyer.

Sale not generally rescinded by lien or stoppage in transit.

54. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section, a contract of sale is not rescinded by the mere exercise of an unpaid seller of his right of lien or stoppage in transit.

(2) Where the goods are of a perishable nature, or where the unpaid seller who has exercised his right of lien or stoppage in transit gives notice to the buyer of his intention to re-sell, the unpaid seller may, if the buyer does not within a reasonable time pay or tender the price, re-sell the goods and recover from the original buyer damages for any loss occasioned by his breach of contract, but the buyer shall not be entitled to any profit which may occur on the re-sale. If such notice is not given, the unpaid seller shall not be entitled to recover such damages and the buyer shall be entitled to the profit, if any, on the re-sale.

(3) Where an unpaid seller who has exercised his right of lien or stoppage in transit re-sells the goods, the buyer acquires a good title thereto as against the original buyer, notwithstanding that no notice of the re-sale has been given to the original buyer.

(4) Where the seller expressly reserves a right of re-sale in case the buyer should make default, and, on the buyer making default, re-sells the goods, the original contract of sale is thereby rescinded, but without prejudice to any claim which the seller may have for damages.

CHAPTER VI.

SUITS FOR BREACH OF THE CONTRACT.

Remedies of the seller.

Suit for price.

55. (1) Where under a contract of sale the property in the goods has passed to the buyer and the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to pay for the goods according to the terms of the contract, the seller may sue him for the price of the goods.

(2) Where under a contract of sale the price is payable on a day certain irrespective of delivery and the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to pay such price, the seller may sue him for the price although the property in the goods has not passed and the goods have not been appropriated to the contract.

Damages for non-acceptance.

56. Where the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to accept and pay for the goods, the seller may sue him for damages for non-acceptance.

Damages for non-delivery.

57. Where the seller wrongfully neglects or refuses to deliver the goods to the buyer, the buyer may sue the seller for damages for non-delivery.

Specific performance.

58. Subject to the provisions of Chapter II of the Specific Relief Act, 1877, in any suit for breach of contract to deliver specific or ascertained goods, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the plaintiff, by its decree direct that the contract shall be performed specifically, without giving the defendant the option of retaining the goods on payment of damages. The decree may be unconditional, or upon such terms and conditions as to damages, payment of the price or otherwise, as the Court may deem just, and the application of the plaintiff may be made at any time before the decree.

Remedy for breach of warranty.

59. (1) Where there is a breach of warranty by the seller, or where the buyer elects or is compelled to treat any breach of a condition on the part of the seller as a breach of warranty, the buyer is not by reason only of such breach of warranty entitled to reject the goods; but he may—

(a) set up against the seller the breach of warranty in diminution or extinction of the price; or

(b) sue the seller for damages for breach of warranty.

(2) The fact that a buyer has set up a breach of warranty in diminution or extinction of the price does not prevent him from suing for the same breach of warranty if he has suffered further damage.

Repudiation of contract before due date.

60. Where either party to a contract of sale repudiates the contract before the date of delivery, the other may either treat the contract as subsisting and wait till the date of delivery, or he may treat the contract as rescinded and sue for damages for the breach.

Interest by way of damages and special damages.

61. (1) Nothing in this Act shall affect the right of the seller or the buyer to recover interest or special damages in any case where by law interest or special damages may be recoverable, or to recover the money paid where the consideration for the payment of it has failed.

(2) In the absence of a contract to the contrary the Court may award interest at such rate as it thinks fit on the amount of the price—

(a) to the seller in a suit by him for the amount of the price from the date of the tender of the goods or from the date on which the price was payable;

(b) to the buyer in a suit by him for the refund of the price in a case of a breach of the contract on the part of the seller—from the date on which the payment was made.

CHAPTER VII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Exclusion of implied terms and conditions.

62. Where any right, duty or liability would arise under a contract of sale by implication of law, it may be negatived or varied by express agreement or by the course of dealing between the parties, or by usage, if the usage is such as to bind both parties to the contract.

Reasonable time a question of fact.

63. Where in this Act any reference is made to a reasonable time, the question what is a reasonable time is a question of fact.

Auction sales.

64. In the case of a sale by auction—

(1) where goods are put up for sale in lots, each lot is prima facie deemed to be the subject of a separate contract of sale ;

(2) the sale is complete when the auctioneer announces its completion by the fall of the hammer or in other customary manner ; and, until such announcement is made, any bidder may retract his bid ;

(3) a right to bid may be reserved expressly by or on behalf of the seller and, where such right is expressly so reserved, but not otherwise, the seller or any one person on his behalf may, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, bid at the auction ;

(4) where the sale is not notified to be subject to a right to bid on behalf of the seller, it shall not be lawful for the seller to bid himself or to employ any person to bid at such sale, or for the auctioneer knowingly to take any bid from the seller or any such person ; and any sale contravening this rule may be treated as fraudulent by the buyer ;

(5) the sale may be notified to be subject to a reserved or upset price ;

(6) if the seller makes use of pretended bidding to raise the price, the sale is voidable at the option of the buyer.

Repeal.

65. Sections 76 to 123 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, are hereby repealed. IX of 1

Savings.

66. (1) Nothing in this Act or in any repeal effected thereby shall affect or be deemed to affect—

(a) any right, title, interest, obligation or liability already acquired, accrued or incurred before the commencement of this Act, or

(b) any legal proceedings or remedy in respect of any such right, title, interest, obligation or liability, or

(c) anything done or suffered before the commencement of this Act, or

(d) any enactment relating to the sale of goods which is not expressly repealed by this Act, or

(e) any rule of law not inconsistent with this Act.

(2) The rules of insolvency relating to contracts for the sale of goods shall continue to apply thereto, notwithstanding anything contained in this Act.

(3) The provisions of this Act relating to contracts of sale do not apply to any transaction in the form of a contract of sale which is intended to operate by way of mortgage, pledge, charge or other security.

APPENDIX D.

NOTES ON CLAUSES.

Clause 2.—The definitions in this clause have been taken from section 62 of the English Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. C. 71). In regard to the definition of the term "document of title" the term has been used in sections 102, 103, 108 and 178 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. It has been held by the Privy Council in Ramdas vs. Amar Chand 43 I. A. 164 that it has the same meaning as it had in the Indian Factors Act of 1849 which is wider than the definition in the English Act. We have therefore enlarged the definition accordingly.

In the definition of the term "goods" we have included shares. In Fazli vs. Mangal Das I. L. R. 40, Bom. 489, it was held that the term "goods" as used in Chapter VII of the Indian Act, 1872, has a much wider sense than it has in the English Law, and includes share certificates. The term "future goods" although not very happy has been held to be convenient. [Lyde vs. Worsley (1893), 1 Ch. at p. 250]. We have therefore retained it and defined it on the lines of the English Act with the addition of the words "or produced" to include agricultural products specifically.

We have added the definition of the word "price" as used in the English Act.

Clause 3.—Though the chapter on the sale of goods has been taken out of the Indian Contract Act, the Bill will form part of the general law of contract. We have therefore provided in this clause that the general provisions of the Indian Contract Act shall continue to be applicable to contracts of sale of goods in so far as they are not inconsistent with the special provisions of the Bill.

Clause 4.—Considerable confusion has been caused by the definition of sale in section 77 read with section 78 of the Indian Act of which the marginal note is "Sale how effected." The last two paragraphs of section 76 contain a good many words which are unnecessary and only create confusion.

It will be observed from the definition of "contract of sale" in the English Act that it comprises two things, namely, (i) sale, and (ii) agreement to sell. It may perhaps be said that, having regard to the sharp distinction that has been maintained in the Indian Act between an agreement and a contract [see section 2, sub-sections (e) and (h) and section 10], it is not desirable to use the expression 'agreement to sell." The answer to that is that as the chapter of the sale of goods now stands in the Indian Act, the expression "sale", "contract of sale", contract for the sale of goods and "agreement for sale" are used more or less indiscriminately. The intention appears to be to maintain a distinction between "sale" on the one hand and "contract of sale" on the other, corresponding with "agreement to sell" in the English Act. The point, however, is that the expression "agreement for sale" is used at least twice in the chapter, namely, in sections 33 and 35 and no confusion has ever been created.

The expressions used in the present clause and in subsequent clauses of the Bill are "transfer, or passing, of property in goods." The Indian Act uses several expressions to the different sections of the chapter on the sale of goods, namely, "transfer of ownership", "completion of sale", and "passing of property" indiscriminately in more or less the same sense. We think it is desirable to use the expression "transfer (or 'passing') of property" throughout the Bill.

The meaning of the word "property" is made clear in clause 2 (jj).

Clause 5.—Sub-clause (1) of this clause is based on the general principle laid down in the Indian Act that a contract is effected by an offer and an acceptance accompanied by consideration. The corresponding section in the Indian Act is section 78. It refers to the making of a sale as well as to the passing of property. In our opinion it is desirable to keep the two matters separate. So far as the making of a sale is concerned, section 76 seems to be open to the following objections :—

(i) Although by its marginal note it purports to lay down a rule relating to sales generally, it deals only with the simplest case of a sale of ascertained goods for a fixed price.

(ii) After stating that a sale can be effected by offer and acceptance of goods for a price and vice versa, it goes on to enumerate various circumstances which would constitute a sale. This enumeration or description is neither accurate nor complete, and should not find a place in a provision which is of a declaratory nature.

(iii) The acceptance referred to in the section is the acceptance of goods as distinguished from the acceptance of the offer. The expression 'acceptance' used in connexion with goods has a special meaning of its own which is given in clause 42 of this Bill

(iv) The section states that part delivery along with offer and acceptance is sufficient to constitute a sale But, in order to effect a complete sale, part delivery must be made in course of delivery of the whole The provisions of this section had therefore to be read subject to the provisions of section 92 [I.L.R. 15, Calc I, at page 6].

The latter part of the section which refers to the passing of property will be considered when the provisions relating to the effects of a contract are dealt with in our comments upon Chapter III of this Bill.

Sub clause (i) of this clause is based on section 10 (i) of the Indian Act and section 3 of the English Act. Having regard to the words "subject to the provisions of any law for the time being in force", we have omitted the proviso relating to corporations which occurs in the English section.

Clause 8.—This clause is taken from section 5 of the English Act.

As to sub-clause (i), reference may be made to sections 31 to 33 of the Indian Act which deal with contingent contracts. Sub-clause (ii) makes it clear that a contract for the sale of future goods operates as an agreement to sell. The rules embodied in this clause have been well recognized in English Law (vide Benjamin on Sale, p. 153, Ed. 6th), and have also been adopted in sections 87 and 88 of the Indian Act. Sections 87 and 88 do not, however, contain a complete statement of law on the subject. We think that it is desirable to lay down on the lines of the English section a distinct rule declaring that a contract which purports to effect a present sale of future goods operates only as an agreement to sell. The question regarding the transfer of property in such cases should be dealt with separately (vide clause 20).

Clause 7.—This clause follows section 6 of the English Act. The rule is based either on the ground of mutual mistake or on the ground of impossibility of performance (Chalmers' Sale of Goods, p. 30, Ed. 10th). Although in Chapter VII of the Indian Act there is no specific provision corresponding to this clause, the general principle underlying it is provided for in section 20 [vide Illustrations (a) and (b) to that section]. Sections 6 and 7 of the English Act use the words 'perish' and 'perished'. In regard to these words some writers observe that goods must be deemed to have 'perished' not only if they are physically destroyed, but also if they have ceased to exist in a commercial sense, that is, if their merchantable character, as such, has been lost [vide Benjamin on Sale, p. 161; Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 25, p. 145]. Chalmers in his book on the Sale of Goods is inclined to think that in such cases the only question is whether the article has been so far destroyed as no longer to answer the description of it given by the contract (p. 30). It, however, appears that the cases relied upon for giving to the term 'perish' an extended meaning ie the sense of deterioration to merchantable quality were not decided with reference to section 6 or section 7 of the English Act. The word 'perishable' occurs also in section 48 of the English Act, which has been adopted in the present Bill (vide clause 54) The writers mentioned above seem to be of opinion that with reference to that section also the goods will be considered as of a perishable nature, not only when they are such as to deteriorate physically by being kept, but also when they are such as to be likely to become unmerchantable as such [Benjamin on Sale, p. 1085, Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol 25, p 264]. Although there is no direct authority on the point, there seems to be a strong opinion in favour of the view that the import of the word 'perish' is not to be restricted to mere physical destruction. We agree in that opinion and have accordingly made it clear that the goods must have been either physically destroyed or so damaged as not to answer the description given in the contract. With this alteration we have adopted the provisions of section 6 of the English Act.

The question whether by reason of the partial loss of the goods they should be deemed to have ceased to exist within the meaning of this clause so as to make the contract void would depend on the circumstances of each case. The point in such a case would be whether the contract was entire or divisible [cf. Barrow v. Phillip (1929) 1 K.B., 574].

In the course of the discussions on clauses 7 and 8, a point was raised that inasmuch as under the terms of the two clauses the agreement is either void or the contract becomes void, these clauses might have the effect of rendering void every kind of contract relating to the sale of goods, lost or not lost, and that they might have the effect of hitting at c.i.f. contracts. It was urged that a c.i.f. contract was also a sale of goods, though to be performed by the tender of documents, and such a contract might not be saved even by the terms of clause 62 of the Bill corresponding to section 55 of the English Act. We, however, think that clause 62 is comprehensive enough in its terms and that c.i.f. contracts would be saved by the clause. We are fortified in our conclusion by the opinion of Mr. Chalmers on page 51 of his commentary on the Sale of Goods Act.

Clause 8.—This clause relates to the impossibility of performance arising after the contract is made and is based on section 7 of the English Act. It is true that Chapter VII of the Indian Act does not contain a specific provision on the point. But the principle is well established and underlies section 56 of the Indian Act. We think it is desirable that it should be included in the present Bill as a specific provision. For the reasons stated in the note to the preceding clause, this clause has been framed to cover the case of goods which are so far damaged as not to answer the description given by the contract. The words 'the agreement is avoided' occurring in section 7 of the English Act are ambiguous. A question might arise by whom the agreement is to be avoided. We have, therefore, substituted the words 'the agreement becomes void' for those words, Clause 9.—This clause is based on section 8 of the English Act. Section 33 of the Indian Act, which corresponds to that section, is not so comprehensive as the English section. It merely contains the provision which is enacted in sub-section (2) of the English section. The principle in sub-section (1) of the English Act is left to be inferred from section 73. We prefer to adopt the arrangement of the English section.

Clause 10.—This clause is a corollary to the preceding clause. It is not uncommon for the parties to agree that the price of the goods will be fixed by valuers appointed by them. In such cases they are bound by the bargain, and the price so fixed is as much part of the contract as if fixed by themselves. But it is essential for the formation of the contract that the price should be fixed in accordance with this agreement, and if the parties appointed as valuers fail or refuse to act, the agreement becomes void [Benjamin on Sale, p. 189; Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 25, p. 143]. This principle is provided for in section 9 of the English Act and has been reproduced in this clause.

Clause 11.—This clause is based on section 10 of the English Act. The principle underlying that section is to be found in section 55 of the Indian Act. In our opinion the present Bill should contain a specific provision on the point. As the General Clauses Act, 1897, contains a definition of the word 'month', sub-section (2) of the English section has been omitted.

Clause 12.—The English Act does not give any definition of the word 'condition'. The English Act is one of 1893, and it was drafted about four years prior to that date. At that time the English Law as to conditions and warranties was in a state of considerable confusion. Since the enactment of the English Act in 1893, there have been a large number of cases on conditions and warranties. We have ventured to define the expression 'a condition'. The material part of the definition consists in the use of the word 'essential', and we think that the English decisions since 1896 bear out this view. [See Fletcher Moulton's L. J.'s dissenting judgment in Wallis v. Pratt (1910) 2 K.B., 1003 at page 1012 afterwards approved by the House of Lords in (1911) A. C. 394.] The expression 'condition' is not used in the Indian Act at all. On this part of the law the Indian Act follows mainly the Scottish Law. This is clear from the provisions of section 118 of the Indian Act, which corresponds exactly to the Scottish Law which is set out in the English Act, section 11 (2). The reason why the expression 'condition' was not used in the Indian Act, is probably to be found in the very uncertain state of the law at that time.

There are many subdivisions of conditions in English Law, and one of them is a division into (1) conditions precedent, and (2) concurrent conditions. Concurrent conditions are the same as reciprocal conditions and they are dealt with in the Indian Act under the head 'Performance of reciprocal promises' in sections 51 to 58.

Conditions are also divided into—

(1) 'Promissory conditions', and

(2) 'Contingent conditions'.

Contingent conditions are dealt with in the Indian Act under the head 'Contingent Contracts' in sections 31 to 36.

It may be observed that so far as the Scottish Law is concerned, it is far behind the English Law. No doubt it clears many knotty points which arise in this branch of the law. But it is not suited to the modern requirements of commerce. Under the Scottish Law a buyer would be entitled to reject goods as on a breach of a condition in many cases in which under the English Law he would be entitled only to damages as on a breach of warranty.

The definition of "warranty" in the English Act is borrowed from the notes to Cutter v. Powell, 2 Smith's Leading Cases, 7th Ed., page 30.

As regards the definition of the term "condition" we have borrowed the word "essential" from the classical judgment of Williams, J., in Behn v. Burness (1863) 32 L. J. Q. B. 204 at pages 208 (2).

On referring to Indian decisions, it will be found that in several cases the Courts have embarked on an inquiry whether the word "warranty" used in some of the sections, e.g., section 118 of the Indian Act, is equivalent to "condition", or is used in the same sense as the word "warranty" is used in English Law. It has been held, at least in one case (Buck v. Gowardhandas 24 Bom. L. R. 991), that the word "warranty" in section 118 means a "condition". In other cases, it has been held that the word "warranty" is used in its limited sense. The difficulty has arisen from the fact that the authors of the Indian Act have avoided throughout the use of the word "condition", and have used the expression "warranty" indiscriminately sometimes in the sense of "condition" and sometimes in the sense of "warranty" proper. As to section 118 of the Indian Act, it may be observed that the word "warranty" is there used in the sense of a condition. This is clear from the contents of the section itself. The section refers to unascertained goods, and provides that the buyer may reject the goods if they are not in accordance with the warranty. Now the right of rejection, according to the English Law, can only be exercised where the stipulation is a condition, and not where the stipulation amounts to a warranty only. The section then goes on to say that the buyer may, notwithstanding the breach of the "warranty" (that is to say breach of the condition), accept the goods and may, by giving notice to the seller, claim compensation from him. This means that the buyer may, as provided by section 11 (1) (a) of the English Act, elect to treat the breach of the condition as a breach of warranty, and may claim compensation from the seller as provided in section 53 of the English Act.

Such being the case, it is desirable that the distinction between "condition", and "warranty" observed in the English Law and reproduced in the English Act should also be introduced into India. By so doing, the Indian Courts will then have the additional advantage of the decisions of the English Courts. It may perhaps be said that difficulties would arise if the word "condition", which has hitherto not been used in the Indian Act, is introduced in the new Act. In practice, however, very few difficulties need arise, regard being had to the fact that almost all stipulations which are conditions according to English Law are specifically dealt with in the several sections of the English Act.

Before concluding this note, we may draw attention to the judgment of Lord Alverstone in Wallis v. Pratt (1911), A. C. 394, where he said :—

"Prior to that Act, there had been a very great deal of litigation and of discussion as to matters which formed only a ground of warranty and matters which amounted to a condition, and the remedies in the one case and in the other were the subject of a great deal of discussion. . . . My Lords, I thought it right to add these few words, because I think it is very important to bear in mind that the rights of people in regard to these matters depend now upon Statute. To a large extent the old law, I will not say, has been swept away, but it has become unnecessary to refer to it."

Clause 13.—Having regard to the conflict which has arisen over the right of the buyer after he has accepted the goods, we have endeavoured to make it clear that once the buyer has accepted the goods, he cannot reject them on any ground. If there be a breach of condition disclosed for instance on subsequent inspection of the goods he can treat the breach as a breach of warranty only and not as a breach of condition. The word "acceptance" has been explained in clauses 41 and 42. Clause 13 (1) and clause 40 of the Bill take the place of section 118 of the Indian Act. Clause 13 (2) takes the place of section 117 of the Indian Act.

Clause 14.—Section 100 of the Indian Act implies that a stipulation regarding title is merely a warranty and breach of it entitles the buyer, as well as a person claiming under him, to recover loss sustained by him from the seller. The provision is based on a rule which was included in the report of the Law Commissioners and as stated by Sir Henry Maine in the Statement of Objects and Reasons to the Indian Bill was a departure from the English Law. No reasons, however, are given to explain why this departure was made. Before 1893 the English Law on the point was in an unsettled state. It was even held at one time that in a sale of specific goods there was no implied warranty of title and that in the absence of fraud the seller was not liable for a bad title unless there was an express warranty or an equivalent to it by declaration or conduct [Morley v. Attenborough (1849) 3 Exch 500 at p. 512 per Baron Parke]. But in Sims v. Marryat 17 Q.B 289 at p. 291 Lord Campbell observed in 1851 that "the exceptions have well nigh eaten up the rule". It is unnecessary to trace the course of English Law on this point. But the correct rule has been stated by Benjamin on Sale, p 895 as follows.—"In regard to conditions as to title, inasmuch as it is an essential element of the contract of sale that there should be a transfer of the absolute or general property in the thing from the seller to the buyer, it would seem naturally to follow that by the very act of selling the chattel the seller undertakes to transfer the property in the thing, and thus warrants his title or ability to sell, and it is believed that such was the true rule of the Common Law." Clause (1) of section 12 of the English Act settles the law on the point and embodies the above rule. It provides that in the absence of an express provision there will be an implied condition as to title in a contract of sale. Clause (2) of section 12 provides for an implied warranty of quiet possession and clause (3) for freedom from incumbrances. These provisions are absent from the Indian Act But it appears that the laws of modern civilized countries recognise such warranties (vide Benjamin on Sale, p. 894, and Chalmers on Sale of Goods, p. 44. In our opinion, therefore, the provisions of section 12 of the English Act should be adopted in India.

This clause gives larger rights to the buyer than what he had under section 108 of the Indian Act. In regard to the 'persons claiming under him', who are allowed by section 109 to proceed against the original seller, we do not think that any specific provision is necessary. Such persons will either be assignees or sub-buyers from the buyer. Their rights against their own seller will be governed by this section, but as against the original seller will depend on the general law.

Clause 15.—Section 113 of the Indian Act deals with sale by description. In the first place, however, the word "denomination" used in the section is not a happy expression and is rarely used nowadays. Further, there is no doubt that the word "warranty" used in the section is used in the sense of "condition", for where there is a contract for the sale of goods by description, in other words where goods are sold as being of a certain denomination, there is not the slightest doubt that it is a condition precedent that goods should be of the contract description or contract denomination. Even in an old case decided in 1838 Chanter v. Hopkins [4 M. & W. 399] Lord Abinger, C. B., pointed out that in a contract for sale by description failure to supply the thing answering the description is no breach of warranty, but a non compliance with or non-performance of the contract itself. There is also no reason for restricting the provisions of the section to the sale of goods which have a commercial denomination [Bain v. Shand (1877) 2 Appeal Cases 455]. It is difficult to understand the import of the explanation to section 113. An express warranty would on general principles negative an implied warranty inconsistent with it. In any case the proposition which the explanation purports to lay down seems to be in conflict with the decision of the House of Lords in Wallis v. Pratt (1911) A C 394. In our opinion section 13 of the English Act lays down comprehensively the law on the point. The first part of the section which provides that the goods shall correspond with the description is, as stated by Chalmers, based on a principle which is universal (Chalmers' Sale of Goods, p 46). The proposition stated in the second part of the section that it is not sufficient that the bulk of the goods should correspond with the sample has been recognised in Illustration (b) to section 113 of the Indian Act. We, therefore, think that it is desirable to adopt the provisions of section 13 of the English Act in place of section 113 of the Indian Act.

Clause 16.—This clause deals with implied conditions as to quality or fitness, and is based on section 14 of the English Act. Sub-section (1) is based upon the judgment of Cockburn C. J. in Biggs v. Parkinson (1862) 31 L J. Exch. 301. In that case the learned Chief Justice said as follows :—

"When a buyer buys a specific article, the rule 'Caveat Emptor' applies, but where the buyer orders goods to be supplied and trusts to the judgment of the seller to select the goods which shall be applicable for the purpose for which they are intended, which is known to both the parties, though there is no express stipulation that they shall be fit for the purpose, there is an implied warranty that they are fit for that purpose. There is no reason why such a warranty should not be implied in the case of a sale of provisions."

Section 114 of the Indian Act is based on this principle. But the provisions of that section appear to have a narrower scope than clause (1) of section 14 of the English Act which has been followed in drafting the present clause.

Sub-section (1) also makes it clear that it is immaterial whether the seller is a manufacturer or producer or not. Thus it clears up the doubt which was raised by the decision in Parkinson v. Lee (1802) 2 East 314. In that case it was held that the seller who was not a manufacturer was not liable for a latent defect. But this decision is no longer good law [vide Chalmers on Sale of Goods, p. 54, and Pollock and Mulla's Contract Act, p. 540, f n. (2)]. The proviso to sub-section (1) enacts the provisions in section 115 of the Indian Act.

The proposition stated in sub-section (2) has been well established in England [Jones v. Just (1868) L.R. 3 Q.B. 197] and has been recognized also in India in two cases from Madras in which it was held that where goods were sold by description, there was an implied warranty that the goods should be of merchantable quality [Pir Mahamad v. Dalsram (1918) 36 Mad. L.J. 180 and Malla & Co. v. R. V. A. Firm (1922) 43 Mad. L.J. 203].

Sub-section (3) re enacts the provisions of section 110 of the Indian Act. In regard to section 111 of the Indian Act it may be observed that the trend of recent decisions does not recognize any distinction between provisions and other goods. [Emerton v. Mathews (1852) 31 L.J. Ex. 139, Smith v. Baker (1876) 40 L.T. 1 N.S. 261. See also Wallis v. Russell (1902) 2 Ir. R. 585 at 611.] There is, therefore, no reason to retain the provision in section 111 of the Indian Act.

Clause 17.—This clause relates to sale by sample. Although old text writers were inclined to the view that the term that "bulk shall correspond with sample" is a warranty collateral to the contract, Abbott C.J. held that the buyer was entitled to reject the commodity, if it did not correspond with the sample [Parker v. Palmer (1821) 4 B. & Ald. 387]. Benjamin after reviewing all the cases observes that this so-called warranty was ever at Common Law really a condition (Benjamin on Sale, p. 736). The buyer is also entitled to have reasonable facilities for inspecting the bulk independently of any local or trade usage to that effect [Laraymer v. Smith (1922) 1 B. & C. 1]; and if there is any latent defect in the sample, i.e., a defect not discernible by the ordinary examination of a prudent buyer which if present in the bulk would render the bulk unmerchantable, the sample is to be taken as if free from it [Heilbut v. Hickson (1872) 7 C.P. 438]. These rules have now been embodied in section 15 of the English Act. Section 112 of the Indian Act refers only to the right of the buyer to reject the goods if the bulk does not correspond with the sample. The use of the word "warranty" in the section is also misleading. Clause 19 therefore has been drafted on the lines of section 15 of the English Act.

Clause 18.—This clause follows section 16 of the English Act. It provides that property in unascertained goods does not pass till they are ascertained. Sections 79, 80 and 87 of the Indian Act deal with the same point, but as they overlap one another, we have adopted the English section.

Clauses 19—24.—Clause 18 (1) and (2) follow section 17 of the English Act, while clause 19 (3) and clauses 20 to 24, follow section 18. The four rules annexed to section 18 of the English Act are stated in separate clauses 20 to 24. Clause 18 is based on the principle of the English Law that the property may pass by the contract itself, if such be the intention of the parties (Chalmers' Sale of Goods, p. 58). On this point there appears to be conflict of opinion in Indian courts. Dealing with a question of the passing of property Sir William Markby observed: "I think this is not a question to be decided simply upon the construction of the Contract Act, but upon the intention of the parties upon which all questions of this kind ultimately depend" [Buchanan v. Audall, 15 B.L.R. 216 at p. 239]. A contrary view was held by Maclean C.J. in Brij Coomaree v. Sukumoodar Fire

Insurance Co [I.L.R., 32 Cal., 816] in which, without referring to Sir William Markby's judgment, the learned Chief Justice held that section 78 of the Indian Act laid down a rule which the parties could not by their arrangement vary. In a recent case the Bombay High Court was of opinion that Maclean C.J.'s view in the above case was unsound [Amin v. Jai, 25 Bom., L.R. 778]. This conflict is due to the rigid terms of section 78 which fails to state that its provisions will be subject to the intention of the parties.

Section 78 provides that when an offer and acceptance have taken place, the property in the thing does not pass until any one of the following conditions have been complied with :—

(i) earnest or tender, payment or part payment of the price, or

(ii) delivery or part delivery of the thing, or

(iii) an agreement, expressed or implied, for the postponement of delivery or of payment, or of both.

It is, however, clear that neither the payment of the price nor the delivery, either whole or in part, is necessary for the completion of a sale. Section 89 of the Indian Act shows that not only there is no necessity for such payment, but that the price need not even be fixed. As far back as 1833 it was stated in England that the sale of a specific chattel passes the property in it to the vendee without delivery [Dixon v Yates, 5 B & Ad, 313 at p. 340]. The last paragraph in section 78 regarding the agreement about the postponement of the payment of price or delivery has been held to imply that it restores the old English common law rule. Cunningham and Shepherd are of opinion that it revives the necessity for an agreement to postpone payment or delivery in cases where there is neither payment, tender, earnest or delivery (p. 318, Ed. II). Pollock and Mulla are of opinion that the wording of the last paragraph does not show how readily an agreement to give credit is to be inferred (p. 449). Section 78, therefore, lays down a rule which is vague and indefinite

The passing or transfer of property constitutes the most important element in the law relating to contracts for the sale of goods. In mercantile contracts the certainty of the rule is often of more importance than the substance of the rule [Lockyer v Offley, I.T.R. 259]. In our opinion it is desirable to follow the clear and definite rule recognized in English Law that unless a contrary intention appears by the contract, the contract itself is sufficient to pass the property in the goods sold That rule is laid down in section 17 of the English Act and is adopted in clause 19 (1) and (2).

The parties, no doubt, may make any bargain they like and the law will give effect to it. When the parties express their intention clearly no difficulty arises. The contract may pass the property at once, or at a future time or contingently on the performance of some condition. But in many cases the parties either form no intention on the point or fail to express it. To meet such cases the courts have worked out a series of definite rules for determining when the property is to be deemed to pass according to the imputed intention of the parties. These rules have been reproduced in section 18 of the English Act (Chalmers on Sale of Goods, pp 9 and 10) and they have been adopted in clauses 20 to 24.

Clause 18 (3) states the general proposition that, unless a different intention appears, the property passes in accordance with rules mentioned in clauses 20 to 24. Clause 20 makes it clear that in the case of an unconditional contract for the sale of specified goods, the payment of the price or the delivery of the goods is not necessary for passing the property. Clause 21 following rule 3 in section 18 provides that the property does not pass until the goods are put in a deliverable state. The same principle is laid down in section 80 of the Indian Act. Clause 22 embodies rule 4 in section 18 of the English Act and corresponds to section 81 of the Indian Act. Clause 23 (1) following rule 5 of the English section provides for a case of unascertained or future goods sold by description. This sub-clause corresponds to section 88 of the Indian Act. Section 84 of the Indian Act contains a proposition which appears to be subordinate to the principle laid down in section 83, and it is rather difficult to see why it was embodied in a separate section. Sub-clause (2) of clause 23 which relates to delivery to a carrier is based on rule 5 (2) of section 18 of the English Act. The principle has been recognized in Indian Law (see Pollock and Mulla's Contract Act, pp. 472-473, Ford Automobiles Co. v. Delhi Motor Co., 24 Bom. L.R. 1146).

Clause 24 relates to 'sale on approval' and what is called in England 'sale or return'. Rule 4 of section 18 of the English Act relates to that subject. When goods are sent on approval, the accepted rule is that there is not generally a completed sale until the buyer has—

(a) signified his approval, which may be either expressly or by dealing with the goods as owner; or

(b) kept the goods until the lapse of the prescribed or a reasonable time without giving notice of rejection; or

(c) made return impossible by his own act or default, as by letting the goods be destroyed or spoilt.

(Pollock and Mulla's Contract Act, p. 452). The above rule has been embodied in rule 4 of section 18 of the English Act and we propose to follow it. So far as the Indian Act is concerned, the principle has been referred to as Illustration (b) to section 78. In our opinion such an important principle should not be relegated to an illustration, but should be embodied in a specific clause.

We also propose to omit section 85 of the Indian Act. The rule stated therein is a rule of intention and depends on the question whether the contract is severable or non-severable. [Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 25, p. 175].

Clause 25.—There are no separate provisions in the Indian Act corresponding to this clause. Sub-clause (2) of clause 23 deals with delivery to a carrier without any reservation of the right of disposal. In this clause the seller's right of disposal or 'jus disponendi' is dealt with. Sub clause (1) is of general application and is not confined to the cases of carriage by sea, while sub-clauses (2) and (3) relate to carriage by sea. The proposition laid down by the clause is embodied in section 19 of the English Act and is well recognized in India also [see 24 Bom. L.R. 1140].

Clause 26.—Section 80 of the Indian Act seems to lay down as an inflexible rule of law that the risk follows the property. According to the English Common Law it is merely a prima facie rule. There is nothing in the law of England to prevent the parties from agreeing, if they please, that the risk shall pass at some time or on some condition which is not necessarily simultaneous with the passing of property; and thus the ownership may in particular cases be separated from the risk [Martineau v. Kitching (1872) L.R. 7 Q.B. 436,

The Parchim (1918) A. C. 157 at p. 168]. Such a case would arise when the parties are at a distance. In our opinion the rule mentioned in section 20 of the English Act, which saves particular agreements and is more comprehensive, should be adopted in India. It also provides for cases where delivery is delayed and where the seller or buyer is acting as a bailee of the goods for the other party. We have adopted the provisions of section 20 of the English Act.

Clauses 27—29.—In England, before the passing of the first three Factors Acts, being the Acts of 1823, 1825 and 1842, a person in possession of goods or documents of title could not dispose of these goods in contravention of his instructions with respect to them except where—

(1) the sale was in market overt;

(2) the owner of the goods was by his conduct precluded from denying the seller's authority to sell; and

(3) the goods were sold under a statutory power of sale.

The Factors Acts referred to above dealt with the powers of factors and mercantile agents entrusted with the possession of goods or documents of title to goods. The joint effect of these Acts was summed up by Blackburn L. J., in Oaks v. North Western Bank (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 354, at page 372. After reviewing the history and policy of the Acts, he said:

"We do not think that the legislature wished to give to all sales and pledges in the ordinary course of business the effect which the common law gives to sales in market overt.....The general rule of law is that where a person is deceived by another into believing he may safely deal with property, he bears the loss, unless he can show that he was misled by the act of the true owner. The legislature seems to us to have wished to make it the law that, where a third person has entrusted goods or the documents of title of goods to an agent who, in the case of such agency, sells or pledges the goods, he should be deemed by that act to have misled any one who bona fide deals with the agent, and makes a purchase from or advance to him without notice that he was not authorized to sell or to procure the advance."

It will thus be seen that the provisions of the Factors Acts referred to above were really an extension of the common law rule of estoppel.

Under these Acts, the terms used were simply "person" or "agent" entrusted with the possession of goods, but it was held that the Acts only applied to mercantile transactions, and that the term "person" or "agent" did not include a mere servant or one who had possession of goods for carriage, safe custody, or otherwise as an independent contracting party, but only persons whose employment corresponded to that of some known kind of commercial agent like factors. Thus a wine merchant's clerk who, as such, was possessed of delivery orders, was held not to be an agent within the meaning of the Acts, so as to be able to make a valid pledge in fraud of his master.

Such was the state of the English law when the Indian Law Commissioners drafted the Contract Bill. To turn now to the Indian law on the subject, there were then in force in India two Factors Acts, one of 1840 and the other of 1844. The Indian Factors Act of 1840 was a reproduction of the English Factors Acts of 1823 and 1825. The Indian Factors Act of 1844 was a reproduction of the English Factors Act of 1842. Both the Indian Acts, like the English Acts on which they were based, related only to pledges. The Acts contained no power of sale.

As regards sales by an apparent owner of goods, the Law Commissioners cut the gordian knot by providing in clause 81 as follows :—

"The ownership of goods may be acquired by buying them from any person who is in possession of them, provided that the buyer acts in good faith and under circumstances which are not such as to raise a reasonable presumption that the person in possession has no right to sell them."

In other words, it was sought to be provided that every place in India should be a market overt. The Select Committee to which the Bill was referred objected to this clause, the ground of objection being substantially that the provision would make British India an asylum for cattle stealers from Indian States. The clause, after a good deal of controversy, was ultimately moulded in the form in which it now stands in section 108 of the Indian Act.

As to pledges by an apparent owner, the clause as drafted by them ran as follows :—

"A person who is in possession of goods or of any bill of lading, dock warrant, warehousekeeper's certificate, warrant or order for delivery, or any other document of title to goods, may make a valid pledge of such goods or documents, provided that the pawnee acts in good faith and under circumstances which are not such as to raise a reasonable presumption that the pawner is acting improperly."

This clause was removed by the Select Committee and it became subsequently section 178 of the Indian Act.

Referring to the above clauses Sir Henry Maine observed as follows :—

"It cannot be denied that the subject is difficult. We have to consider, on one hand, the hardship suffered by an innocent person who loses in this way his right to recover what was his undoubted property. But, on the other hand, still greater weight appears to us to be due to the hardship which a bona fide purchaser would suffer were he to be deprived of what he bought. The former is very often justly chargeable with remissness or negligence in the custody of the property. The conduct of the latter has been blameless. The balance of equitable consideration is, therefore, on the side of a rule favourable to the purchaser; and we think that sound policy with respect to the interests of commerce points to the same conclusion.

We have, therefore, provided that the ownership of goods may be acquired by buying them from any person who is in possession of them, if the buyer acts in good faith, and under circumstances which are not such as to raise a reasonable presumption that the person in possession has no right to sell them. Similar provisions have been inserted in accordance, we may observe, with the spirit of the Factors Act—to meet the cases of those who have purchased goods or taken them by way of pledge from persons in possession of any documentary title to the goods, where the circumstances are not such as to raise a reasonable presumption that the person in possession of the document has no right to sell or to pledge the goods."

It is clear from the above observations that the intention was that a buyer should acquire a good title to goods if he bought them from "any person" who was in possession of them, if he acted in good faith. Though that was the intention of the Legislature, the Indian Courts have in some cases construed the word "possession" both in sections 108 and 178 of the Indian Act to mean "juridical possession". In other cases, however, it has been held that the word "possession" is used in its literal meaning and that there is no warrant for qualifying it. (See Haji Rahimbux v. Central Bank, I.L.R. 56 Cal. 367, where all the cases on the point are reviewed.) The general trend, however, of the decisions is to confine the operation of both the sections to juridical possession and to sales or pledges by persons whose employment corresponded to that of commercial agents like factors. Such being the state of the authorities, it is desirable that the law both of sales and pledges by apparent owners should be made clear, and this we have attempted to do in clauses 27 to 30 of the Bill. In so doing we have borrowed certain provisions of the English Factors Act, 1889, which repeals the previous Factors Acts. Section 1 of that Act defines a "mercantile agent" as meaning a mercantile agent having in the customary course of his business as such agent authority either to sell goods, or to consign goods for the purpose of sale, or to buy goods or to raise money on the security of goods. Section 2 of the Act empowers a mercantile agent to sell, pledge or otherwise dispose of goods or documents of title to goods of which he is in possession with the consent of the owner so as to give to the buyer a good title subject to the limitations mentioned in the section.

In clause 27 of the Bill we have confined the power of sale to mercantile agents only. In confining this power to mercantile agents, we are bringing this law substantially into line with the English law. No doubt sales in market overt are recognized in English law. But the law of market overt has in England ceased to be of any general importance having regard to the large number of of limitations, having been placed on such sales by subsequent statistics. We do not think that the principle of market overt should be extended to this country.

We have specifically stated in the clause that a person buying goods from one who is not the owner thereof and who does not sell them with his consent acquires no better title to the goods than the seller had except in the two cases mentioned therein, one being the case of estoppel and the other the case of a sale by a mercantile agent in possession of goods with the consent of the owner and having authority either to sell goods, or to consign goods for the purpose of sale, etc. Clause 27 is substituted for the first part of section 108 including Exception 1. Exception 2 of that section is transferred to a separate clause, being clause 28. Clause 29 is substituted for Exception 3 to that section on the lines of section 23 of the English Act. We have omitted the second paragraph to Exception 3 to section 108 as being unnecessary.

Clause 30.—This clause is new. It provides for the case of a sale by a seller who is in possession of goods sold by him. It is a reproduction of section 25, sub-section (1), of the English Act, which again is based to a large extent in section 8 of the English Factors Act, 1889. Before the enactment of section 8 of the English Factors Act, 1889, it was held that if the buyer, for his own convenience, left the goods and documents of title in the hands of the seller, who fraudulently resold or pledged them, he could nevertheless recover the goods from the innocent purchaser or pledgee. Section 8 of the Factors Act was enacted to remove the hardship caused by the common law rule.

Clause 30, sub clause (2), provides for the case of a sale by a buyer obtaining possession of goods with the consent of the seller, where the original sale was one on credit. It is a reproduction of section 25, sub section (1), of the English Act, which again is based to a large extent on section 9 of the English Factors Act, 1889. Before the enactment of section 9 of the English Factors Act, it was held that a sale or pledge of goods or documents of title to goods by the buyer does not defeat the unpaid seller's rights, the reason given being that the buyer was not entrusted with the goods as an agent. Section 9 of the English Factors Act was enacted to remove the hardship caused by the common law rule referred to above. The words "other right of the seller in respect to the goods" in clause (2) of the Bill relate inter alia to a right which a seller may have to avoid a contract on any of the grounds on which a contract can be avoided

Sub section (3) of section 25 provides that the delivery or transfer by the buyer in person "shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were a mercantile agent in possession of the goods or documents of title with the consent of the owner." Instead of those words we have substituted, to avoid the use of the expression "mercantile agent," the words "shall have effect as if such lien or right did not exist." The change in the language, we think, does not make any difference in the result.

There was some difference of opinion on the question as to whether the protection to a purchaser from a seller or buyer in possession should be extended also to a purchaser from a mercantile agent acting for the seller or the buyer. The clause, as it stands, is new; it provides for the additional cases in which a buyer may acquire a good title; we have not therefore considered it desirable to extend the protection to a purchaser claiming from a mercantile agent acting for a seller or a buyer. It need hardly be said that no express provision is necessary in regard to a sale effected by a person duly authorized by the seller or the buyer in possession.

Having regard to the changes which we have made in section 108 of the Indian Act, we think it is desirable that section 178 should be amended so as to make it consistent with the provisions of clause 27 of the Bill

Clause 31.—This clause is based on section 27 of the English Act, Although there is no specific section corresponding to it in the Indian Act, it is implied in section 51. We think a separate section is desirable.

Clause 32.—The general rule is that the obligation of the seller to deliver and that of the buyer to pay are implied concurrent conditions in the nature of mutual conditions precedent, and that neither can enforce the contract against the other without showing performance or offering to perform or averring readiness and willingness to perform his own promise (Benjamin on Sale. pp. 682 and 683). The words 'unless otherwise agreed' save sales on credit or such special contracts as a, i, f, contracts. The rule has been embodied in section 28 of the English Act and has been adopted in this clause. The principle of this rule is implied in section 51 of the Indian Act.

Clause 33.—This clause provides for the manner in which delivery of goods can be made and corresponds to section 50 of the Indian Act. The words 'which the parties agree shall be treated as delivery' have been added to make it clear that delivery may also be made by means of an act or thing which the parties agree shall be treated as a delivery. (Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 25, p. 206.)

Clause 34.—This clause repeals the provisions of section 62 of the Indian Act. It affirms the English common law rule that the delivery of the part may be a delivery of the whole, if it is so intended and agreed, but not otherwise. (Pollock and Mulla's Contract Act, p. 429.)

Clause 35.—In this clause the provisions of section 63 of the Indian Act are repeated. It is true that there is no specific provision in the English Act corresponding to it. But the principle seems to have been well recognized in England also. It has been held that in the absence of a contrary agreement, a seller is not bound to send or carry the goods to the buyer. He may leave or place them at the buyer's disposal, so that the latter is able to remove them (Benjamin on Sale, page 758). In the opinion of Chalmers there is nothing in the wording of the English Act to displace this rule [Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 25, f. n, (a), page 207]. There was some difference of opinion amongst us on the question as to whether the expression "apart from any contract or in the absence of a contract to the contrary" should be substituted for the expression "apart from any express contract," and clauses 6, 36 (2) and 62 of the Bill were referred to. We have however retained the expression "apart from any express contract," as the rule enunciated in clause 35 has been in existence since 1872 and has been adopted in actual practice.

Clause 36.—This clause is a combination of section 29 of the English Act and section 24 of the Indian Act. We have omitted the second part of section 29 (1) of the English Act and substituted in its place the provisions of section 24 of the Indian Act, adding the words 'manufactured or' before the word 'produced' in sub-clause (2) corresponding with section 24 of the Indian Act.

Sub-clause (1) corresponds to sub-section (2) of section 29.

The latter part of section 29 (1) of the English Act provides that apart from any contract, express or implied, the place of delivery is the seller's place of business, if he have one, and if not, his residence. Before this provision was made by the English Act, there was no settled rule in England. In the opinion of Chalmers a more definite prima facie rule ought to have been included in the English Act, (Chalmers' Sale of Goods, p. 58.) The rule embodied in section 24 has been found to have caused no difficulty in India and we propose to retain it.

Clause 37.—Section 119 of the Indian Act provides for one of the contingencies with regard to the quantity of the goods. Section 30 of the English Act is comprehensive and deals with all possible contingencies which generally occur. We have, therefore, adopted the provisions of the English section.

Clause 38.—The case of instalment deliveries falls under the general provisions embodied in sections 39 and 120 of the Indian Act. As a corollary to the preceding clause, in the absence of a contract, express or implied, a buyer is not bound to accept by instalments the delivery of the goods sold to him. This is provided for in sub-section (1) of section 31 of the English Act and we have adopted it in clause 34 (1).

It was held in some of the old cases that where a contract provided for delivery by instalments, either expressly or impliedly, the refusal by the seller to deliver or by the buyer to accept or pay a particular instalment was a breach which went to the root of the contract. [Withers v. Reynolds (1831) 2 B. and Ad 882, Hoare v. Rennie 29 L. J. Ex. 79, Honck v Muller (1881) 7 Q. B D. 92.] A contrary view was, however, held in other cases [Jonassohn v. Young (1863) 32 L. J. Q. B. 326, Simpson v. Crippin (1872) L. R. 8 Q. B. 14, Freeth v. Burr (1874) L. R. 9 C. P. 208]. The latter view was followed in India in the following cases:—I. L. R. 4 Cal. 252, 9 Mad 359, 18 Mad. 93, (1914) Punj. Rec No 63, p 214. The true rule in such cases is that each case should be judged on its own facts (Chalmers' Sale of Goods, p 81). Sub-section (2) of section 31 of the English Act gives effect to that principle. That sub-section, however, does not contain a full statement of law on the point (Benjamin on Sale, p. 828). It only provides for a defective delivery on the part of a seller. In our opinion the rule ought to apply where the seller omits or refuses to make a delivery. We have, therefore, inserted the words 'no delivery or' after the words 'the seller makes' in sub-clause (2).

Clause 39.—This clause is a combination of section 32 of the English Act and section 31 of the Indian Act. In England it has been well settled for more than a century "that if a tradesman orders goods to be sent by a carrier, though he does not name any carrier, the moment the goods are delivered to the carrier it operates as a delivery to the purchaser" (Pollock and Mulla's Contract Act citing Dutton v. Solomonson 3 B. & P. 582). It is also well established that it is the seller's duty "to do whatever was necessary to secure the responsibility of the carrier for the safe delivery of the goods, and to put them into such a course of conveyance, as that in the case of a loss the buyer might have his indemnity against the carriers" [Clarke v Hutchins (1811) 14 East 475]. These two rules have been embodied in section 91 of the Indian Act and elaborated in section 32 of the English Act. Section 91 of the Indian Act refers to a carrier or a wharfinger also. The reason appears to be that delivery of goods to a carrier or wharfinger was treated as standing on the same footing [Buckman v. Levi (1813) 3 Camp. 414]. The English section does not refer to a wharfinger. In England there are special statutory provisions relating to wharfingers. As the rule as to wharfingers in section 92 has been in existence since 1872 in India, we consider it desirable to include it in the present clause. In England there has been some difference of opinion regarding the applicability of section 32 (3) to f. o. b. contracts. Bailhache J. in Wimble v. Rosenberg (1913), 1 K. B. 279 and Hamilton L. J. in (1913) 3 K. B. 752-57 are of opinion that in view of the use of the word 'sent' in that sub-section it does not apply to f o b contracts. As in f. o. b. contracts a seller is required only to deliver goods on board the ship and thereafter they remain at the risk of the buyer, the two judges mentioned above are of opinion that the goods are not sent within the meaning of section 32 (3). This view was not shared by the majority of the Bench in the Court of Appeal [see observations of Vaughan Williams and Buckley L. JJ. in (1913) 3 K. B., pp. 752-53]. The majority view was followed later on in the Court of Appeal in Northern Steel Co. v. John Butt & Co. (1917) 33 T. L. R. 316. As the point has not been finally decided by a higher tribunal, we think it is desirable to retain the word 'sent' in sub-clause (3).

Clause 40.—This clause is based on section 30 of the English Act. It was pointed out in the course of the discussion that this clause might be deleted, as it might be difficult to work it side by side with the other clauses in the Bill which enjoin a duty on the seller to comply with the conditions as to merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, and so on. And it was also urged that the principal that the buyer should bear the risk of deterioration incidental to the transit is inconsistent with the fundamental basis of the contract postulated by the section that the seller should undertake the transit, that the delivery should be after the transit and that the seller should take the risk in the meantime. We have, however, decided to retain the section, as it is in accordance with the principles recognized by the common law of England and as the section of the English Act which is based upon the common law has been in force for a long time.

Clause 41.—This clause is based on section 34 of the English Act. The rules stated in both the clauses are common law rules (Benjamin on Sale, pp. 842 and 856). Sub-clause (1) enacts the well established proposition that no acceptance can properly be said to have taken place until the buyer has had an opportunity of rejection.

The rule stated in sub-clause (2) is a corollary to the above rule and was applied in Isherwood v. Whitmore (11 M. and W. 347). In that case, the defendants, having received notice that the goods were at a certain wharf ready for delivery on payment of the price, went there, but on application to inspect the goods were shown two closed casks said to contain them. It was held that no sufficient opportunity was given to the buyer to examine the goods and the plaintiff, therefore, had not made a valid offer of delivery. Although there is no section in Chapter VII of the Indian Act laying down the rule, the principle underlying it has been embodied in section 39 (2) of that Act. The rule has also been applied by Latham J, in a Bombay case in Ratlansey v. Jamnadas I. L. R. 6 Bom. 592. The words 'unless otherwise agreed' save special contracts.

Clause 42.—This clause is based on section 35 of the English Act and embodies the common law rule on this point.

Clause 43.—This clause is based on section 36 of the English Act. Although there is no specific provision in the Indian Act laying down the rule stated in the section, the rule has been applied in several cases in India [Sonar Chand v. Ardeshir (1907) All. W. N, 67, Bush & Co. v. Govardhandas 24 Bom. L. R. 991.]

Clause 44.—This clause is based on section 37 of the English Act. There is no specific provision in the Indian Act on the point, but the rule is based on the remarks of Lord Ellenborough in Greaves v. Ashlin (1813) 3 Camp. 426 and is a salutary rule of law. The reference to the charge for custody shows that the clause applies to cases in which the property has passed and the buyer neglects to take possession. The proviso to the section saves all the rights of the seller which he is entitled to enforce in case of the repudiation of the contract on the part of the buyer.

Clause 45.—This clause defines an unpaid seller and is based on section 38 of the English Act. There is no similar provision in the Indian Act. One of the rights of an unpaid seller is dealt with in section 95. We think it desirable to define an unpaid seller.

The trend of the decisions in England before 1893 was to give rights of an unpaid seller against the goods to any one whose position can be shown to be substantially analogous to that of an ordinary seller (Chalmers' Sale of Goods, p. 102). Sub-clause (2) gives effect to that view.

Clause 46.—This clause which is based on section 39 of the English Act declares generally the rights of an unpaid seller. When the property in the goods has passed to the buyer, he has the following rights :—

(1) lien,
(2) stoppage in transit,
(3) right of resale.

This clause groups together in a convenient form the rights of an unpaid seller which are scattered over different sections in the Indian Act. Lien is provided for in sections 95 to 98, stoppage in transit in sections 100 to 106 and resale in section 107.

Sub-clause (2) refers to other rights of an unpaid seller where the property has not passed to the buyer.

Clause 47.—This clause is based on section 41 of the English Act and states clearly in what case the seller is entitled to enforce his right of lien. The provisions of this clause are at present embodied in sections 95 to 97 of the Indian Act. The Explanation to section 95 which defines an insolvent has been relegated to the interpretation clause of this Bill. Sections 95 to 97, however, are silent regarding the question whether a seller is entitled to exercise his right of lien when he is in possession of the goods as an agent or bailee of the buyer. This question usually arises in cases when the buyer becomes insolvent allowing the goods to remain in possession of the seller. There is no reported decision of any Indian Court on this point. The old common law rule was that though the goods may remain in the possession of the seller, yet, if it is agreed between the seller and the buyer that the former's possession shall thenceforth be that of a bailee for the buyer, and not that of a seller, the right of lien is gone [Cusack v. Robinson (1861) 30 L. J. Q. B 251 at p. 254]. The lien is only revived if the buyer becomes insolvent [Townley v. Crump (1835) 4 A. & E. 58]. The common law rule was abrogated in England by section 41 (2) of the English Act. This clause is based on the statutory rule adopted in that sub-section.

We do not think it desirable to make any provision relating to equitable titles and have therefore left the matter to be dealt with under the ordinary law of the land.

Clause 48.—This clause follows section 47 of the English Act. The principle is to be found in the Illustration to section 109 of the Indian Act.

Clause 49.—Very often a question arises whether the lien of a seller has terminated. There is no express provision in Chapter VII of the Indian Act on the point except such as is implied by section 100. Section 43 of the English Act, following the common law rules, declares when such lien terminates. We consider that these rules should be adopted in the present Bill. Sub-clause (3) of the present clause which is based on section 43 (2) of the English Act recognizes the principle in the following cases, viz.,—Hinditch v. Dennyes (1816) 2 Stark. 337, Spitzaver v. Great N. W. Railway (1871) 19 W. R. 385.

Clause 50.—This clause follows section 44 of the English Act. The principle is recognized in sections 99—106 of the Indian Act.

Clause 51.—This clause is based on section 45 of the English Act. The same principle is embodied in section 100 of the Indian Act, but we prefer to adopt the provisions of the English section.

Clause 52.—This clause is based on section 46 of the English Act. The rules contained in that section correspond to sections 104 and 105 of the Indian Act.

Clause 53.—This clause is based on section 47 of the English Act. It relates to the effect of a sub-sale or a pledge of the goods sold by a buyer before he has paid the price. The first paragraph of sub-clause (1) combines the provisions of sections 98 and 101 of the Indian Act; sections 102 and 103 of the Indian Act refer to the transfer of a document of title by the buyer. That provision is contained in the proviso to sub-clause (1). The words "having obtained" in section 102 of the Indian Act are not satisfactory. They may include the case where the buyer obtains the document tortiously. To exclude such cases the English provision uses the words "lawfully transferred". The controversy with regard to the meaning of the words "document of title" has been now set at rest by the Privy Council decision in Ramdas v. Amrchand, I. L. R. 43, I. A. 164. They have the same meaning as they had in the Factors Act of 1849 and include any instrument of title. To make the proviso applicable to warrants and orders for the delivery of goods which are really "issued" and not transferred, we have inserted the word "issued" before the words "lawfully transferred".

In sub-clause (2) we have inserted a provision to provide for the right of marshalling by an unpaid seller, when the buyer has transferred the goods by way of a pledge of the documents of title. In such cases an unpaid seller is entitled to require the pledgee to satisfy his claim against the buyer first out of any goods or securities in the hands of the pledgee. The principle of marshalling applies to transactions relating to immovable property (see sections 56 and 81 of the Transfer of Property Act) and is also well recognized in England as being applicable to contracts for the sale of goods [see Halsbury, Vol. 23, p. 262, Benjamin on Sale, p. 1059].

Clause 54.—This clause relates to the right of re-sale of an unpaid seller, and is based on section 48 of the English Act. In drafting the clause, we have been guided by the following principles:—

(1) Before the seller exercises his right of resale, he should give notice to the buyer of his intention to re-sell.

(2) In default of such a notice, the seller should have no right to claim any damages for loss on re-sale from the buyer and should be under an obligation to pay over the profits, if any, arising from the re-sale to the purchaser.

(3) Whether or not the requisite notice is given, the purchaser from a seller should get an absolute and clear title. This position underlies section 48, clause (3) of the English Act, but the point is made clear in the Bill.

In regard to the profits arising from the re-sale, we have thought it right that the seller should be entitled to the profits inasmuch as the re-sale is the result of a breach of contract on the part of the buyer. We have not overlooked the fact that this point is treated as doubtful in English law.

We have not attempted to define the word "perishable" because the English decisions and text-books make it clear what that word means. Vide Halsbury, Vol. 25, p. 264, Benjamin on Sale, p. 1065.

Clause 55.—This clause is based on section 49 (1) and (2) of the English Act. The provision in sub-clause (3) of section 49 of the English Act dealing with interest has been included in clause 61 of the Bill.

Clause 56.—This clause is based on section 50 of the English Act. We have omitted in this and the other clauses (57 and 58) the provisions of the English Act relating to the measure of damages, as they are provided for in sections 73 and 74 of the Indian Act.

Clause 58.—This clause is based on section 52 of the English Act. We have adopted it in this Bill, inasmuch as it comes appropriately under the head of remedies. As the principles relating to specific relief in India are contained in the Specific Relief Act, 1877, the provisions of this clause are expressly made subject to that Act.

Clause 59.—In this clause the distinction between "condition" and "warranty" has been maintained. See notes to clauses 12 and 14 of the Bill.

Clause 60.—This clause is new and deals with what is known as anticipatory breach. The remedies on an anticipatory breach have been recognized for a long time in England as well as in this country. [See Leigh v. Paterson (1818) 129 R.R. 423, Frost v. Knight (1870) L.R. 7 Exch. 111, Manushkha v. *Rangarh*i 1 Mad. H.C.R. 162, Steel Bros. v. Dayal Khanji I.L.R. 47 Bom. 824.] The principle embodied in this clause is included in sections 36 and 120 of the Indian Act. We think it is desirable to make a specific provision in the Bill

Clause 61.—Sub-clause (1) of this clause follows section 54 of the English Act. Sub-clause (2) (a) follows the Scottish law embodied in section 49 (3) of the English Act. Sub-clause (2) (b) is new. There has been a considerable conflict of opinion in India on the question whether interest can be claimed by way of damages as a breach of contract or on the price. (See Pollock and Mulla, page 413.) In a recent Full Bench case in Madras the majority of the Court held that a person who has advanced money to another for the supply of goods is not entitled to get interest on the amounts advanced if the seller makes default in performing the contract. Ramesam, J., however, dissented from the above view and was of opinion that interest could be awarded as damages under section 73 of the Indian Act. See Ramdappa v. Muthu Swami I.L.R. 50 Mad. 94. We think it is desirable to make a specific provision for interest. The general rule of English law is that damages for the detention of a debt are merely nominal and that in an action for the price of goods sold interest is not recoverable. But the Scottish law as embodied in section 49 (3) of the English Act allows interest to the seller. There is no express provision either in English or Indian law for the payment of interest to the buyer suing for the refund of the price. In our opinion, the buyer should get interest in such a case, and we have therefore included a provision to that effect in sub clause (2) (b). In our opinion interest on damages should not be awarded, and we have therefore made no provision in that behalf.

Clause 62.—This clause is based on section 55 of the English Act and is merely an application of the general maxims, Expressum facit cessare tacitum, and modus et conventio vincunt legem. The rule is well recognized in France also (see Chalmers' Sale of Goods, p. 137). The sale is a consensual contract and the parties may alter at will the obligations which the law implies from the general nature of the contract. The rule was well recognized in England before the passing of the English Act. In Heath v. Muller [1881] 7 Q.B.D. at page 103, Lord Blackburn, discussing the correlative obligations on payment and delivery, said: "There is no rule of law to prevent the parties from making any bargain they please."

Clause 55.—This clause relates to the import of the term "reasonable time". On the lines of section 56 of the English Act, it is provided that it is a question of fact in each case. The same provisions exists in the Explanation to section 46 of the Indian Act.

Clause 64.—This clause relates to auction sales. The provisions of sections 122 and 123 of the Indian Act are not exhaustive. We prefer to follow section 58 of the English Act but we have altered the arrangement of the different provisions to make them more clear. The order we have adopted is supported by the provisions of the Puffer's Act, 1867 (30 and 31 Vict., c. 48). See also Halsbury, Vol. 25, page 286. Sub-clause (b) of this clause re-enacts the provision of 123 of the Indian Act.

Clause 66.—This is a saving clause. Sub-clause (f) items (a) to (e) save in general terms all transactions made, proceedings taken and rights and liabilities arising before this Bill comes into operation. Item (d) of the sub clause saves any Act relating to the sale of goods which has not been expressly repealed by this Bill. Thus such enactments as the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1923, or the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, which contain special provisions relating to the sale of goods are saved.

In clause 4 of the present Bill we have introduced an express provision that the provisions of the Indian Act which are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Bill shall continue to apply to contracts for the sale of goods. Thus the general Law of Contract, as embodied in the Indian Act, has been made expressly applicable to contracts for the sale of goods.

Sub-clause (g) of this clause is based on sub-section (1) of section 61 of the English Act and saves the rules of Insolvency Law, whereas sub-clause (h) which follows sub-section (4) of the English section enacts that the provisions of this Bill shall not apply to ostensible sales.

Bill No. 10 of 1929.—Madras District Municipalities and Local Boards (Further Amendment)	139

Bill to be introduced in the Council of the Governor of Fort St. George for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations:

Under rule 18 of the Madras Legislative Council Rules, the following Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons, is published for general information:—

BILL No. 10 OF 1929.

A Bill further to amend the Madras District Municipalities and Local Boards (Amendment) Act, 1921.

Madras Act 11 of 1922.

AND WHEREAS the previous sanction of the Governor General has been obtained to the passing of this Act; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be called the Madras District Municipalities and Local Boards (Further Amendment) Act, 1929. Short title.

Amendment of section 2 of Madras Act 11 of 1922.

2. In section 2 of the Madras District Municipalities and Local Boards (Amendment) Act, 1921 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act)— Mad. II, 1

(ii) in sub-section (2), after the words "elected or appointed a councillor" the words "or having become an ex officio councillor" shall be inserted

Amendment of sect on 5 of Madras Act, 11 of 1922.

3. In section 5 of the said Act for the words "who has become an ex officio member of a local board" the words "who has become an ex officio councillor of a municipal council or an ex officio member of a local board" shall be substituted.

Insertion of new section 5-A in Madras Act 11 of 1922.

4. After section 5 of the said Act, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

Saving in the case of chairmen and presidents.

"5-A. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 5, the chairman of a municipal council or the president of a local board, who has not made the oath or affirmation as a councillor or as a member of the local board, as the case may be, shall be entitled to act as such chairman or president;

Provided that he makes the oath or affirmation and takes his seat at the first meeting of the council or board which he attends within two months after he is elected or appointed as, or becomes entitled to exercise the functions of, the chairman or president, as the case may be.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section—

(i) 'chairman' includes a vice-chairman exercising the functions of the chairman under sub-section (6) of section 12 of the Madras District Municipalities Act, 1920; Madras Act V of 1920

(ii) 'president' includes—

(a) the vice-president of a district or taluk board exercising the functions of the president of the board under sub-section (1) of section 18 of the Madras Local Boards Act, 1920, Madras Act XIV of 1920.

(b) the president of the district headquarters taluk board exercising the functions of the president of the district board under sub-section (2) of the same section, and

(c) the temporary president of a taluk or union board appointed under sub-section (3) or sub-section (4) of the same section.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Section 5 of the Madras District Municipalities and Local Boards (Amendment) Act, 1921, as amended by Madras Act IV of 1925, has been interpreted as prohibiting the president of a local board and the chairman of a municipal council from functioning as such president or chairman until he has made the oath or affirmation. The same interpretation will be applicable to the vice-president or member of a local board who could exercise the functions of its president under section 18 of the Madras Local Boards Act, 1920, and to the vice-chairman of a municipal council who could exercise the functions of its chairman under section 12 (6) of the Madras District Municipalities Act, 1920. This causes considerable inconveniences. In the case of existing local boards, for example it restricts the selection of temporary presidents to be appointed under sub-section (4) of section 18 of the Madras Local Boards Act, and, as a matter of fact, the proceedings of certain local boards at meetings convened by such temporary presidents have lately had to be invalidated on the ground that the temporary presidents had not made the oath or affirmation before convening the meetings. In the case of newly created local boards and municipal councils, an appointed president or chairman will not have had an opportunity to make the oath or affirmation and he will consequently be unable to convene a meeting for the purpose or to function as president or as chairman as the case may be. To obviate these difficulties, the Bill proposes to amend the Madras District Municipalities and Local Boards (Amendment) Act, 1921, so as to enable a president, temporary president, or vice-president, etc., of a local board and the chairman or vice-chairman of a municipal council to exercise the functions of the president or chairman, as the case may be, before he makes the oath or affirmation provided that he makes the oath or affirmation at the first meeting he attends within two months of his election or appointment.

The opportunity has been taken to make a necessary amendment to section 2 of Madras Act II of 1922. Unlike section 4 of the same Act, section 2 refers only to elected and appointed councillors and does not refer to a person who becomes an ex officio councillor. Under section 14 (a) of the District Municipalities Act, 1920, an appointed chairman becomes an ex officio councillor, if he is not already a councillor. It is, therefore, necessary to bring section 2 of Act II of 1922 into line with section 4 in order to make it applicable to the case of an appointed chairman who becomes an ex officio councillor. Section 5 has also been amended so as to include ex officio councillors within its scope.
